Mr. Sloan Cheerful.
No Bootleg in This.
Rays That Pierce Steel.
He Talked Too Much.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WHAT THE WORLD needs more than anything else just now is optimism, especially in America, with call money at 1 per cent and "too much" of everything.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, refuses to join the downhearted, panic-stricken. He says:

"The automobile industry has reached the bottom of the cycle of depression, and has begun a slow, but sure return to normal conditions. This is apparent, not only in the automobile business, but in all lines of industry."

Usually, when you read that a man has killed his family and himself, you find a paragraph about the bottle of bootleg whiskey.

In a story from York, Pa., bootlegging plays no part. Harry Dietrich, a farmer, hanged himself after killing his wife and four children.

In place of the usual whiskey bottle, there was a note saying the family must die together, as he could not leave them alone.

The farmer's note for $3800 was coming due at a local bank next Saturday, with no money to pay it.

Those still young remember the first announcement of the X-rays. Pictures in Sunday newspapers showed, dimly outlined, skeletons of rats or cats revealed by X-ray penetration.

Next came X-ray pictures of broken bones. Now the X-ray is as much a part of industry as it is of surgery and medicine.

According to the latest amazing announcements the "Gamma Ray" enables scientists to look through solid steel beams of skyscrapers or the armor of battleships.

Thus weak spots can be detected, any defect inside of the metal being actually "seen." This reminds you that men can DO whatever they can IMAGINE.

David Weinberg, 44, a tailor, has learned that saying what you think is sometimes dangerous. He was interested in Communism and discussed it with his neighbors in Miami, so the police say. And he had books on the subject.

Men kidnaped him from his house, took him in an automobile, stripped him naked, beat him, tarred, feathered, handcuffed him, wrapped him up in a white hooded cloak, then threw him out of the automobile in his own neighborhood.

A book on religion, stained with tar, was thrown from the automobile with him.

Great successful nations are on a gold basis. If, at any time, there should not be enough gold, an inadequate "basis" for doing business would cause trouble.

The League of Nations gold delegation reports to the league financial committee that by 1933 the world's gold supply will be inadequate to carry on business, unless something can be done to distribute the gold more evenly.

That means distributing two billions in gold that France has accumulated, and the larger gold hoard of the United States.

George E. Roberts, vice-president of the National City Bank, one of the League's gold delegation, says something can be arranged to take care of gold for the next 10 years.

He is probably right. A few years ago, the distinguished scientist, Crookes, whose "Crookes' tube" will keep him forever famous, solemnly warned the world that by 1932, there wouldn't be enough wheat to feed the population, and predicted serious famine, unless some other food were developed.

Since then seed wheat has been developed that grows far in the north, where wheat never grew before. Fertilization and cultivation have been improved, and the problem now is not too little wheat, but TOO MUCH wheat.

All sorts of news in Wall Street yesterday, "nearly all bad." An interesting feature was money lending at one per cent. "On call, a considerable change from the 12, 15 and 20 per cent last fall.

It is amazing how easily our much despised Bolshevist friends in Russia frighten our great financial "best minds" in America.

Those best minds, recently busy proving that Russia's government never could amount to anything, are now busy hunting some method of competing with Russia in a business way.

The new rate for call money, one per cent in the outside market, arises from what Wall Street calls "a glut of money."

GOODWIN'S BILL TO CUT AUTO RATE 20 P. C.

Joins With Hays in Fight for State Insurance; Hits Demerit Plan

Asserting that the proposed demerit system is not feasible, former Motor Vehicle Registrar Frank A. Goodwin, jointly with Representative Martin Hays of Brighton, filed in the House today a bill for a competitive State fund for automobile insurance.

The state fund plan would supplant the present compulsory automobile insurance and would block off the same insurance under the proposed demerit system.

The bill provides for a mutual company managed by the public works department. [illegible] rate of this company would be 20 per cent less than those of private companies. Investigation of all accidents will be made by the registry department, thus eliminating needless claims.

"The demerit system looks good in theory, but in practice it will not work without a corresponding merit system. The people will not stand for all one-way for the insurance companies. This bill provides for a mutual company managed by the Public Works Department, which shall be a division in that department and which will necessarily work in harmony with the Motor Vehicle Department.

"Under it the insurance commissioner, when he fixes the rates for the private companies each year, will also fix them for the publicly managed company, but in doing so must eliminate from those rates profit, acquisition costs, field supervision and inspection charges.

"In other words, the rates for this company will necessarily be about 20 per cent less than private companies."

M'CARTHY QUITS AS MANAGER OF CUBS

Man Who Built Team to Be a World Series Contender Succeeded Today by Hornsby

Chicago, Sept. 25 (INS)—Joe McCarthy resigned today as manager of the Chicago Cubs.

Rogers Hornsby, second baseman for the Bruins, immediately took McCarthy's place.

Incensed over the appointment of Hornsby as 1931 manager of the club, McCarthy went to the office of Phil Wrigley and tendered his resignation immediately.

Bad blood between McCarthy and Hornsby, which has been kept under cover during the existing race for the pennant, broke out anew when McCarthy announced his resignation.

JEALOUSY AND LOVE SPAT IN MAINE'S TRAGEDIES

One of Doomed Men Tried to Burn Body of Girl; Other Shot Woman at Dance

Portland, Me., Sept. 25—Two convicted murderers, both of whose victims were women, were sentenced today to life imprisonment at the State penitentiary in Thomaston.

James M. Mitchell of Portland was sentenced after pleading guilty in Superior Court to the murder of Lillian L. MacDonald, who worked in a Portland book store, where he also worked, last July.

At about the same time Donald Pomeroy, 22, of Skowhegan, was sentenced in Waterville to life imprisonment for the slaying of Mrs. Doris Moran, his sweetheart, last March 30.

The murder for which Mitchell was sent away for life was one of the most atrocious in Maine police history.

Miss MacDonald, a 20-year-old payroll clerk, was murdered in the basement of the stationery store on a Saturday morning, and her charred body was found the following day, stuffed into a furnace which Mitchell tended.

In the other case, Mrs. Moran and her escort, James Henderson of Madison, were shot as they sat together after a dance in an apartment full of friends. She died.

HOUNDS PUT ON BABY'S TRAIL

Falmouth, Sept. 25—With two bloodhounds on the trail, a posse of 150 today resumed search for Lillian Siquera, 3, who wandered away yesterday morning.

Fred Leatherbee, Falmouth dairy farmer, mounted, and with his hounds, led police, firemen, Boy Scouts and citizens, including the child's mother, Mrs. August Siquera, in the search.

An all-night hunt with flashlights, conducted by Chief of Police Herbert H. Lawrence, proved futile. Search today turned to the woods, in the belief that the child had fallen asleep there.

Mrs. Siquera has been living apart from her husband for two and one-half years and he is believed to be in Maryland. She works and leaves Lillian with a neighbor during her absence. The little girl was last seen playing in a cornfield on the outskirts of the town.

Police searched the shores of Jenkins pond, but said it would be unnecessary to drag it because a child so small would not be able to get into deep water.

STOCKS LOWER IN WALL ST.

New York, Sept. 25—Heavy selling in the afternoon hours on the stock market today brought out some extreme declines of 3 to 10 points in a long list of shares but short covering in the final dealings reduced the general declines to 1 to 5.

eBarish professionals found some of the days' news to their liking, especially the resignation of the Austrian cabinet and the speech of Adolf Hitler, the German fascist, at Leipsig, and routed the market out of an irregularly lower movement into another active decline which swept U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Radio, General Electric and other favorites to new minimums.

U. S. Steel, breaking to 157¾, closed at 158⅝ for a net loss of 2%. American Telephone, Standard Oil of New Jersey lost 2, radio, International Harvester, United Aircraft and Vanadium 3, Western Union 4, Gillette 5, American Can one-half and Case 10.

TAYLOR DEFENDS G. O. P. SLIGHT TO MRS. W. LOWELL PUTNAM

PUTS O.K. ON COMMITTEE CHOICES

Says Bullock Entitled to Honor, Denies Prohibition Issue Involved; Women Up in Arms

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY.

Chairman Amos L. Taylor of the Republican state committee today stood pat on the makeup of the resolutions committee for the convention next Saturday, despite the charge by Mrs. William Lowell Putnam that she had been sidetracked in favor of Matthew W. Bullock, prominent Negro attorney.

In a formal statement, Taylor contended the anti-prohibition stand of the sister of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard had nothing to do with his decision not to put her on the platform committee.

He said Mrs. Putnam, who is a member of the state committee, suggested Mrs. Mary W. Winslow represent the 11th district when she submitted her own name for membership from the 10th district. As both live in the 10th district, he said, and changes were thought advisable to properly balance the committee, Mrs. Winslow was retained "out of courtesy to Mrs. Putnam."

HONOR DIVIDED BY 40

Taylor disclosed that Mrs. Putnam had been assigned to "the position of vice-president of the convention" from the 3d senatorial district.

It was later brought out, however, that the vice-presidents number 40 one from each senatorial district.

Taylor's statement said:

"I have read with interest this statement of Mrs. William Lowell Putnam in the press this morning with reference to the committees to be suggested to the Republican state convention.

"As it is necessary for the committee on resolutions to consider the question of the platform and to give the public an opportunity to be heard before the convention, the committee must be chosen in advance. This has always been done at State committee headquarters at the meeting of the State committee on Sept. 18, I asked the members to make suggestions for membership on resolution, one from each Congressional district.

HER CHOICE NAMED

"When the suggestions were all received and considered it was deemed advisable to make a few changes in order to give the committee proper balance. Mrs. Winslow is not a member of the state committee and Mrs. Putnam is. Out of courtesy to Mrs. Putnam, her nominee, Mrs. Winslow, was retained. As Mrs. Winslow and Mrs. Putnam both live in the same congressional district it was thought that a change might be made with propriety.

"Mr. Bullock had also been suggested for recognition. He has always been an active Republican. He is a prominent graduate of Dartmouth College, where he was a famous end on the football team. He is now a prominent attorney and a member of the State Board of Parole.

"The question of the so-called 'wet and dry' issue had no weight in making this change. In fact I do not know Mr. Bullock's attitude on this question. I have no idea how he will vote."

SEES DRY DEFEAT

Bullock was a visitor to the state committee headquarters today but refused to make any comment on the controversy.

The resentment of Mrs. Putnam, who was unanimously indorsed for a place on the resolutions committee from the 10th Congressional District, was echoed today by prominent women active in the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, head of the anti-prohibition organization, issued a statement calling upon the Republican party to make known its stand on prohibition. The statement demands that the individual position of the candidates also be revealed to the voters.

"If the Republican party is dry —or if it straddles, the party will inaugurate a defeat in the November election," the statement of Mrs. Ames read in part.

Burrell Snubbed; Not Bidden to the G. O. P. Love Feast

The political "snubbing" season bore fruit again today, the latest victim being Fred J. Burrell of Medford, Republican nominee for state treasurer.

Burrell was omitted from the list of guests invited to the "Love Feast" banquet to be given by the Republican Club Friday night, the eve of the Republican State convention.

The snub administered to Burrell is considered another indication that there will be a sticker against him in the election.

Chicago Gunman, Picked Up by Police, Boasts Press Card

Chicago, Sept. 25 (AP)—The police became absorbed in a new question today: Why do gunmen carry press cards?

Johnny Genaro did not present his courtesy card when the police picked him up yesterday. He was arrested by the squad that sought his brother "Peppi," one of the 26 "public enemies" wanted for vagrancy.

The card, embossed in gold and bearing the words "Secret" superimposed diagonally in red ink, was found in his pocket today. It read:

"United States News Service Bureau, New York-Chicago.

"Executive office: Lumber Exchange Building, Seattle, Wash.

"The bearer, Mr. John Genaro, is an accredited correspondent for the United States News Service Bureau. Any courtesies extended him will be appreciated.

"R. H. Rush, Director in Chief.

"Void after December 31, 1930, Registered No. 136."

At the bottom was Genaro's signature.

Homeward Bound Now

MAYOR SALTER MAYOR WALKER

MAYOR JAMES J. WALKER had his big smile working yesterday when he extended the glad hand of welcome to Mayor Reuben Salter of Boston, England. The English mayor had just reached New York after spending a week in Boston as the tercentenary guest of the city when Mayor Walker extended the courtesies of the city to him. Mayor Salter sailed for his home in England last night. (Int'l photo.)

SALTER'S VIEWS ON RUM HIT

Back to the famous retort of Mark Twain went Jonathan Lewis, federal prohibition director, today as one official who disagrees with Mayor Rueben Salter of England.

The recent honored guest of Boston, interviewed in New York city, said:

"You can swim in liquor in Boston, Mass. They offered to bring a trolley load of it to my hotel and to do it in five minutes."

Lewis treated the statement lightly and U. S. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr dismissed it with four words:

"It's an extravagant statement."

"You've heard of that famous retort of Mark Twain's on the report of his death," Lewis said.

"Like Mark, I think the statement of Mayor Salter 'is somewhat exaggerated.'

"I don't know what facilities he had for finding the basis of his statement. Then again, I wonder how much liquor it would take to swim in. I don't want to call a Boston guest a fabricator; he may know more about it than I. Neither do I want to enter into any controversy with our guest."

Mayor Salter dwelt on America's prohibition at some length, his statements being from observators while here, he said.

"America is such a smart nation in other ways I don't see why it stands for prohibition," he said.

GIRL'S STORY OF SHOOTING IS BLOCKED

Firearms Expert Says Only One Shot Was Fired at Fantasia

The story of Philomena Romano, missing witness, that Sam Gallo fired three shots and killed Joseph Fantasia in a North End street three years ago, is false, it was testified today at the joint trial of Gallo and Gangi Cero, both previously convicted of the crime.

Capt. Charles H. Van Ambergh, firearms expert of the state police, testified that only one shot had been fired from the gun.

Special Officer Mark Madden, who picked it up at the scene, said it contained one discharged cartridge and one that had not been fired.

EXPERT IS RECALLED.

Capt. Van Ambergh and Officer Madden were recalled to the stand after the state had finished reading the story the missing girl told at Gallo's trial while Cero was under death sentence.

Michael Flanagan, former officer at Charles st. Jail, testified that while Gallo and Cero were both in jail Gallo told him to give Cero anything he wanted, and Cero said:

"I don't want anything from Gallo."

Augustine J. Gill, police stenographer, told of taking Cero's story following his arrest.

He also read a statement of Gallo denying he had hired Cero to kill Fantasia.

The testimony contradicting Miss Romano's version of the shooting was given after failure of an 11th hour attempt to have her story stricken from the records of this trial.

JURY MUST DECIDE

Motion to erase the 90 pages of evidence from the records after it had been read was made by Attorney Garro, Gallo's attorney. Counsel for Cero, who sees in it a rope of life, opposed the move, as did Asst. Dist. Atty. Fred M. Sheehan.

Once again Judge William A. Reardon warned the jury from the crowded Suffolk superior courtroom while he heard counsel's argument. He denied it with the brief statement:

"The admissibility I have already ruled upon. The weight of this evidence the jury is called upon to decide."

Completion of the reading of testimony given by Miss Romano at the trial of Gallo, while Cero was awaiting sentence of electrocution for the same crime, was begun yesterday over the bitter objections of Gallo's lawyer, and it was concluded at 11 o'clock this morning.

"Casanova's Homecoming" Gets Clean Bill in Court

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—Magistrate Gotljeb ruled today that "Casanova's Homecoming," by Arthur Schnitzler, is not improper and dismissed summons against the publishing firm of Simon & Schuster and members of the firm, charging them with possessing and selling an objectionable book.

Opinions of literary figures like Henry L. Mencken, Theodore Dreiser, Sinclair Lewis and John Cowper Powys were cited by the magistrate as supporting his conclusion regarding the book.

He ordered John Sumner, head of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, to return 1640 copies of the book seized in a raid.

Mr. Hearst Invited to Be Oakland, Cal., Guest

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 25—Mayor John L. Davis and the commissioners of the City of Oakland today issued a formal invitation to William Randolph Hearst to visit their city as an official guest.

The city council unanimously adopted a resolution congratulating the publisher upon his sturdy Americanism and expressing the desire to join with New York, Boston and Chicago in greeting him.

The resolution follows:

"WHEREAS, William Randolph Hearst, noted publisher and public benefactor, has just returned from Europe and,

"WHEREAS, other cities of our country have already paid homage to the Americanism of William Randolph Hearst and have recognized the great public services he has rendered his country; and,

"WHEREAS, William Randolph Hearst is an outstanding figure in the publishing world and the people of Oakland have enjoyed the benefits of his efforts; and,

"WHEREAS, William Randolph Hearst is a native Californian and has done much together with his late mother, Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, to develop the resources of the State, to build the State university and to improve the cities in which he publishes papers;

MAYOR'S TRIBUTE.

"NOW, THEREFORE, be it resolved: That the City Council do, and it hereby does, invite William Randolph Hearst to visit the city of Oakland and be the guest of the mayor and the commissioners of the city, that we may join in congratulating him on his Americanism."

Mayor Davis made this statement after the resolution was passed:

"William Randolph Hearst is a native of California. California should join with other parts of the country in paying tribute to his unfailing Americanism, and I sincerely hope that Mr. Hearst will be able to be our guest.

"His stand on things American is always one of which we may be proud. He will not be bulldozed or flattered into conceding to other countries points of international dispute which he feels would injure America. Through his fearless and enterprising journalism he has exposed many so-called American diplomats from making serious blunders.

TRIBUTE TO MOTHER.

"He has courageously fought the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations, either openly or through the many rear doors provided by European powers who want the use of American prestige and American money.

"We, of Oakland and California, are even more in his debt than other communities. His beloved mother, Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, and himself have given millions of dollars to the University of California providing higher education for our children.

"His activity in the Boulder dam project, which will benefit all of the State and particularly southern California, will not soon be forgotten by those of us who have followed his fight for that great water and power project.

"It will be a privilege for the city of Oakland to join with other cities of the country in honoring this great American."

Commissioner Frank Colbourn added this tribute:

"The people of America owe much to William Randolph Hearst. More than ever we are realizing it now. New York, Boston and now Chicago are paying him tribute. I am glad to join with my colleagues in the city council in extending an invitation to Mr. Hearst to be our guest that Oakland, one of the leading cities on the Pacific Coast, may join with the Atlantic Coast and the Mid-West in paying tribute to this great publisher, this man who puts his country first at all times."

SOCIETY GIRL'S BODY FOUND

Philadelphia, Sept. 25 (AP)—The body of a woman found on a farm in Chester County, 25 miles west of Philadelphia today, has been identified as Miss Grace Delancey V. Newlin, 30-year-old member of a prominent Bryn Mawr family.

Beside her body was a bottle and a glass that apparently had contained poison. Her automobile was also found nearby. Miss Newlin disappeared Tuesday morning.

Gov. Allen Rides to Fair in Old Coach

Worcester, Sept. 25 (AP)—Another capacity crowd wended its way toward the fair grounds today to witness the entrance by stage coach of Governor Allen and his staff, it being Governor's Day at the New England Fair. Governor Allen was met at the gate by the famous Shrewsbury - Worcester stage coach, which conveyed him into the grounds.

Season's First Snow Falls in Black Hills

40 BANDS WILL BE IN PARADE FOR HEARST

Mayor Thompson Selects Big Stadium for Reception; All Chicago Enthused

By JOHN W. DIENHART
Universal Service.

Chicago, Sept. 25—All records of public demonstrations in Chicago promise to be broken by the reception to be tendered William Randolph Hearst by the city and county. The event has been tentatively scheduled for October 17.

The South Park Board of Commissioners threw its support to the movement today. It joined in inviting the publisher here, and then tendered the use of Soldier Field for the event.

Mayor Thompson accepted the offer.

Although the stadium is the largest in the country, the mayor said the desire to pay Mr. Hearst tribute is so genuine and widespread he is convinced it will not be too large.

PREDICTS BIG PARADE.

In a telegram last night to the publisher, he wired, in part:

"After 48 hours' work and the remarkable favorable response by Chicago's citizens for your reception, I feel that I may increase my estimate that there will be 1000 automobiles in the afternoon parade, accompanied by 40 bands; with 150,000 people in the stadium to greet you after a tour of our boulevards, and 10,000 people at the banquets in several hotels.

"May I presume that you might best place yourself in my hands upon arrival and permit me to assign you to some hotel of my selection, because the proprietors are already jealous as to whom should have the honor to entertain you and your party?"

Earlier in the day the mayor wired the official invitation to Mr. Hearst. In his message he said:

"In accordance with a resolution passed by the City Council at a special meeting held on Monday, September 22, 1930, which resolution I have duly approved as mayor, it becomes my privilege and honor to transmit to you an invitation to be the official guest of the city of Chicago in the near future.

FRENCH AFFRONT SCORED.

"The great services rendered by you to the American people and the high value of your citizenship have long been recognized and appreciated by the splendid people of the city of Chicago.

"The recent affront shown to you by the French government has been deeply resented by our people, and accepted by us as an act of disrespect, not only to your own fine qualities of Americanism, but to the citizenship and patriotism of our great country.

"The circumstances under which you, as an American citizen, were requested by the French Government to depart from France, reflect great honor upon your Americanism and devotion to your country's interests, and constitute a fine tribute to the value of the signal service rendered by you to the American people."

Lieut.-Gov. Fred E. Sterling wired immediate acceptance from Rockford. His message said:

"Accept with pleasure your invitation to participate in Chicago's welcome to Mr. Hearst."

FRENCH RECORD PARADE

Tentative arrangements call for a grand parade to precede the Stadium reception to Mr. Hearst. Louis Golan, marshal of past parades, said he expects the line will exceed by far the number of cars which participated in other public demonstrations here.

James Petrillo, head of the local musicians' union, agreed to organize 40 bands of at least 800 pieces at the Stadium. The bands will merge to lead the assembled throng in singing the nations' anthem. Formal tribute then will be paid Mr. Hearst.

Because of the demand for seats at the banquet, the committee indicated it may be necessary to hold several simultaneously in several hotels. Mr. Hearst would be asked to dine at one, but to appear before all.

State Representative Thomas O'Grady, a Democrat, advised the mayor yesterday that the French settlement in the district is resentful at the action taken by the French Government toward Mr. Hearst. He added:

"They feel it would be just as improper and unwarranted for the American Government to expel from the American shores a Frenchman who had protected the interests of his nation as it was for the French Government to expel Mr. Hearst for having exposed the Anglo-French naval treaty."

OPIUM BLOC FEARS ACTION BY U. S. IN WAR ON NARCOTIC TRAFFIC

NATION MAY LEAD WORLD FIGHT

Pan-American Countries Willing to Join in Fight on World Dope Ring

(For 10 years the League of Nations has been dealing with the dope problem without any material beneficial results. Certain nations of Europe, interested in the vast profits obtainable through the sale of narcotic drugs, have blocked every effort for concerted action at Geneva.

(The Hearst newspapers now propose a Pan-American conference on the subject. Such a move would enable the United States, acting collectively with the Pan-American countries, to force the league's proposed narcotic conference and dictate the terms of a convention to limit manufacture. The opium bloc would be ashamed. Following is the third of the four articles dealing with the problem.)

By KENNETH CLARK

Geneva, Sept. 25—America long ago realized that the opium problem must be solved through concerted international action.

The solution is simple, save for one factor—the greed of nations and individuals for the profits they derive from the hideous business. They put gold above humanity.

They are willing to kill thousands of victims of dope rather than forego the juicy and easy profits.

The problem now is to arrive at a solution which would force the "dope murderers" to give up their nefarious trade, to prevent their trading by making it impossible for them to obtain dope by limiting manufacture of drugs.

IGNORE NATIONS

Several avenues are open. Foremost is devising a method to bring pressure on the league's opium bloc. That bloc, including the dominant nations of the league, has ridden rough shod over the victim nations, ignoring their wails.

Spain, Italy, Poland, Venezuela—to mention only a few—have raised a voice in protest. Each time the opium juggernaut has swept over them.

But, out on the western horizon there looms a giant figure. The mere mention of whom terrifies the opium bloc.

It is the shadow of the United States and Pan-America.

LEADING FIGHT

It was America which initiated the first international effort to suppress the opium traffic in 1909. In 1912, still vigorously fighting for humanity, the United States brought about The Hague opium conference. From it resulted a convention by which nations agreed to put an end to the illicit business.

That the promises were not kept is a painful duty to record.

Representative Porter's unsuccessful efforts to work through the league are well known.

Since the withdrawal of the Porter delegation from the league conference in 1925, the United States has been inactive in the international movement to curb the evil. The time has not been altogether wasted, however, for the United States, during that period, has enacted domestic laws to put its own house in order. No nation can boast of more rigid internal control.

Drug Makers to Decide How Much Is Needed in 1931

Washington, Sept. 26—A conference of drug manufacturers to determine the legitimate medical requirements in narcotic drugs of the United States during 1931 will be held here October 7 and 8. The conference has been called by Harry T. Anslinger, named yesterday by President Hoover as commissioner of the newly-created narcotic bureau of the Treasury Department.

At this conference the quantities of crude opium and coca leaves to be imported next year will be fixed under the terms of the Porter narcotic act passed by Congress at the last session. Also it is expected the conference will fix the volume of reserve narcotic stocks to be permitted to meet emergency requirements.

LAYS SHOOTING TO 'TORTURE'

Enid, Okla., Sept. 25 (AP)—Insisting she was "tortured" and "hounded" into shooting H. Z. Wedgwood, U. S. commissioner, and attempting to wound Judge Arthur Sutton in district court here yesterday, Mrs. Dolly Douthitt, elderly widow, was held in jail today awaiting the outcome of Wedgwood's injuries.

Angered when a civil suit was decided against her and in favor of Wedgewood, Mrs. Douthitt shot Wedgewood in the abdomen and sent a wild bullet at Judge Sutton.

"They tortured me into it; they hounded me into it," she woman declared. "For months they have been after my money. I have $35,000 or $40,000 they are trying to get.

"I don't know why I did it. I don't know why I wanted to kill."

Los Angeles, Sept. 25—Mrs. Elinor Westphal of Alameda, Cal., is t obe a witness in the $210,000 defamation of character suit filed by Robert Van Den Berg, San Francisco riding master, against her husband, Adolph R. Westphal.

Mrs. Westphal sued for divorce, charging her rich husband was "mean and sticky." He answered by charging she was intimate with other men, naming Von Den Berg "on information and belief."

Van Den Berg says the charges are false and when the trial opens his attorney, Laurents J. Kreuger, will call Mrs. Westphal as a witness. The Westphal divorce has not yet been decided.

SHAKEUP NEAR, HULTMAN ADMITS

Working on Plans for Changes Within Week, Says Police Head

Boston police department will rock in a new shakeup in a week, Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman virtually admitted today.

The commissioner said many reports of police captains had been [illegible] back for revision and for more de[illegible].

"There won't be anything doing for at least a week," the commissioner replied when asked if he contemplated making further transfers. "I have considerably more inv[illegible]ing to do and I don't anticipate that I will finish before another week."

SYSTEM OF RECORDS

Hultman said that as a result of his investigations he is contemplating installing the Boston Public Library system for keeping police records, endorsed by Capt. Ainslee C. Armstrong now compiling records of the department. The system is in use in the commissioner's own office, installed by Miss Elizabeth Donahue.

During today's interview Hultman remarked:

"I wish somebody in writing would say something besides the fact that I am chasing the demon rum. There is still another question involved.

BREEDING OF CRIME

"In my opinion, the bulk of the speakeasies are breeding places for crime and three-quarters of the crimes committed are hatched in these places."

The Commissioner said he met a friend and was asked how he felt about the "Baby Volstead" Act.

"I told the gentleman," Hultman said, "that my job was to enforce the laws that are on the statute books. If the people do not like them it is their privilege to have them repealed, but I will continue to enforce the laws so long as they are there to be enforced."

Braintree Citizens Ready for Many Tercentenary Activities

BRAINTREE CELEBRATES its Tercentenary Friday and Saturday with a varied program including a parade and historical pageant by school children, sports, concerts and exercises in the town hall. Here is a group of Braintree high school girls who will take part in Friday's exercises.

BUSY CITIZEN. Willard P. Sheppard, chairman of the general celebration committee for the Braintree Tercentenary program. Mr. Sheppard is president of the town chamber of commerce.

GEORGE DORMAN C. E. FISHER

TWO WILLING WORKERS in the Braintree Tercentenary celebration are George Edw. Dorman, secretary of the general committee, and C. E. Fisher, superintendent of Braintree schools.

BRAINTREE TO HOLD FETE

Tomorrow and Saturday, through the efforts of public-spirited citizens, Braintree will celebrate the Massachusetts Bay Colony Tercentenary with a program which includes a parade of school children and a presentation of historical tableaux, sports and exercises in the town hall.

At a meeting held on June 23 for the purpose of organizing this celebration, the following officers were chosen for the general committee: Willard P. Sheppard, chairman; George Edward Dorman, secretary, and Loring C. Munroe, treasurer.

Friday's exercises will consist of a parade of all the school children of Braintree. They will be grouped in two divisions, one under Elberta M. Eldridge, principal of the Jonas Perkins school, and the other under J. L. Jordan, principal of the high school, as marshals.

The children will march to Hollis Field, where they will be reviewed by Gov. Allen and the distinguished guests of the town. After this, the marchers will disband and a series of outdoor tableaux will be presented.

These will be various episodes in the history of Braintree. The children will all be attractively costumed and a distinctive color has been chosen for each school.

On Saturday, a complete program of sports has been arranged to be held at Hollis Field. The feature of this program will be the baseball game between the Braintree White Sox and the Holbrook Town Team. The Post 86, American Legion Band, will play at the field throughout the afternoon.

10 Years Added to Life Span of the 1930 Baby

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—To every child born in 1930 medical science, in the old fairy tale role of godfather, says:

"You may logically expect to have ten years more of living than the 1910 baby."

Expectation of life at birth has increased from 48 to 58 years in the last two decades. Older age groups also have an extended life span, according to United States Public Health Service.

Life insurance and census bureau figures are the basis for the computations.

The Public Health Service pronounced these the principal disease control triumphs of the 20 years, chief factors in the longer life span:

No child need now die of smallpox or diphtheria, among the most deadly scourges of the past. Babies may safely be vaccinated for smallpox and be given antitoxin for diphtheria.

Scarlet fever has become so mild health authorities seldom recommend wholesale immunization. If one child in a family has contracted measles, it is now often possible to protect the remaining children by administration of immune serum.

Typhoid fever is well guarded against in most American cities by sanitary control of water and milk supplies. Children bitten by mad dogs can be saved by the Pasteur treatment.

Low Fliers to Be Haled Before Court

State Supervisor of Aviation Robert L. O'Brien today issued a warning to all fliers at the Boston airport that low flying over East Boston must cease or the offenders would be brought into court on charges of operating so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public. In his communication Supervisor O'Brien stated that planes have been flying unnecessarily low over the tenement district of Jeffries Point.

Humid Heat Over City; Mercury 80

Boston today felt the warmest weather experienced in several days. At 3 p. m. the temperature was recorded at 80 degrees. The unpleasant feature was the humidity, which at noon was 61 per cent. The weather man expects it to continue warm through tonight and tomorrow, with probably light showers.

TODAY

Historians of the future will find it difficult to understand why we worried in the year of Our Lord 1930, with nothing but "gluts" to worry about.

There's too much MONEY, too much WHEAT, too much OIL, a great deal too much COAL, too much industrial production, too much sugar.

If "too much" frightens us so badly, what would "too little" do to us?

How are the mighty fallen! How sudden are changes in politics!

New York's Anti-Saloon League will "accept" Mr. Tuttle as the Republican candidate for governor, if he will only consent to run as a wet, without insisting on putting in the platform a demand for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Mr. Tuttle, who learned a good deal about prohibition as federal district attorney, is expected to insist on absolute repeal, and nothing else.

MODEL LINKED TO CRATER

New York, Sept. 25 (INS)—Another woman today was brought into the case of Supreme Court Justice Joseph F. Crater, missing for six weeks.

The name of "Connie" Marcus, clothing model, was mentioned before the grand jury investigating the jurist's disappearance by Mrs. Augusta J. Mallaber, school teacher.

"Connie is a lovely woman," the witness is reported to have said, "and I am sure there was only platonic friendship between her and Justice Crater."

Connie is now out of the city but, according to the police commissioner, she is expected to return the end of the week.

FIREMEN SAVE LIFE OF CHILD

The girl lapsed into unconsciousness after a fit of coughing and her parents called fire headquarters for the inhalator. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cook.

Engine 6 and Ladder 3 of the Teele sq station responded. After ten minutes' work, the girl return to consciousness.

Clara Bow Says 50c Chips Cost Her $100 Each

Los Angeles, Sept. 25 (AP)—Clara Bow, filmdom's redhead, has broken a two-day silence to answer assertions that she stopped payment on checks for $13,900 after offering them in payment of gambling losses at a Nevada hotel.

The actress' statement read, in part:

"While I was at Lake Tahoe, Mr. Will Rogers invited Rex Bell, my secretary, Miss Davee, and myself, to dinner. I did not know the hotel was a gambling place. After dinner Mr. Rogers went to one of the gambling tables and, naturally, we went with him. I began to play a little at a game called 'Twenty-One,' which they call there 'Black Jack.'

"They gave me 50-cent pieces to play with and I signed some checks in blank, telling the dealer to fill in the amount of the 50-cent pieces he had given me. There were four checks.

"It now seems they claim these 50-cent pieces represented what they call $100 chips and they put enough in the checks to amount to that."

The requisition of the checks was called to the attention of B. F. Schulberg, Paramount Studio official, by James McKay, owner of the hotel. He said Will Rogers, film humorist, had introduced the actress at his hotel.

Rogers, however, denied introducing the actress.

"Introducing Clara Bow to anybody," he said, "is like introducing Hoover to the Senate. Clara and her boy friend, Rex Bell, film actor, were going to dinner one night and I asked them to be my guests. The hotel is not solely a gambling house.

"Clara wasn't gambling much while I was there. I saw her going around making a few bets, but she didn't appear to be betting much."

BUTLER PLANS CAMPAIGN FOR SENATE

William M. Butler, G. O. P. nominee for United States senator, plans an aggressive campaign against his Democratic opponent, Marcus A. Coolidge, Fitchburg manufacturer.

The former Senator, following a series of conferences with Governor Allen, Lt.-Gov. Youngman, National Committeeman Louis K. Liggett, National Committeewoman Mrs. Nathaniel P. Thayer, Chairman Amos L. Taylor and Vice-Chairman Mrs. Frank R. Batchelder of the state committee, today was engrossed in his party convention activities.

While he preferred to wait, he said, until the party platform is adopted Saturday before taking up the issues of the campaign, he disclosed that he intends to hammer away on his slogan of "better business for Massachusetts."

"I believe this is the greatest issue before the people," he said emphatically. "It transcends everything else."

The former Senator's campaign as well as that of the state ticket is in the hands of the state committee. The committee is now organizing a speakers' bureau and mapping out the itinerary of the candidates. As in the primary, the radio will be used extensively.

Butler and the organization leaders expressed themselves as looking forward with entire confidence to a Republican victory in the November election.

GERMANY WILL SLASH TREATY, SAYS HITLER

Leipsic, Germany, Sept. 25 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, Fascist generalissimo, today declared that just as soon as the German Fascists by legal means have captured political power in Germany they will tear asunder the treaty of Versailles if necessary by means looked upon by the world as illegal.

His sensational announcement was made at the trial of three Reichswehr officers, to which he had been summoned as a witness.

"The political Socialists do not regard the international agreements as law, but as something forced upon us," he said. "Germany is gagged by the peace treaties. We do not acknowledge our guilt in the war, especially not the guilt of future generations. When we shall oppose these treaties by every possible means, we shall find ourselves in the midst of revolution.

"We shall oppose these treaties both diplomatically and by completely evading them. That may be looked upon by the world as an illegal method, but we will not employ it until the party has been victorious. After two or three more elections our party will be in the majority.

"The national Socialist movement will pursue its aims within the state with means prescribed by the Constitution. The Constitution, however, prescribed only the method and not the final end.

"We will make our party the decisive factor by means of the law-making bodies, but at the moment that our party has the power we will mould the state in the form that we consider the right one."

Hitler Speech Causes Slump in Berlin Boerse

Prehistoric Skulls, 10,000 Years Old, Found in Illinois

Chicago, Sept. 25 (AP)—Nine skulls, recently found near Lewistown, Ill., are thought by Prof. Fay-Cooper Cole of the University of Chicago to date human presence in the Mississippi Valley several thousand years earlier than hitherto believed.

The skulls, in contrast to Hopewell men and others found to date, are long and narrow. The tentative name "given them is "blacksand men," from the glacial gravel layer in which they were found.

"I am satisfied they lived since the last glaciation," Prof. Cole said, "which was 10,000 or 12,000 years ago."

RECOUNT NEAR END FOR CITY

The recount of votes cast in the primaries in the Butler-Draper fight for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator in Boston was resumed today at the election commissioners' office.

Only Wards 14 and 21 remained to be counted in this contest, and Chairman Peter F. Tague expected to finish today.

At the conclusion of the Butler-Draper count the House fight in the same wards will be recounted, and the last task will then be the recount of the House contest in Ward 12.

Bandit Picks Wrong Man for Holdup; Pays With Life

Chicago, Sept. 25 (AP)—A bandit last night picked in John Zeigler the wrong man to mob. Zeigler slew him.

The desperado, identified from fingerprints as Washington P. Meggary, entered Zeiglers' automobile with a pistol and ordered Zeigler to drive ahead. Zeigler did, but when he had attained a moderate speed he suddenly jammed the brakes.

The bandit put his hands forward to prevent being thrown through the windshield. Zeigler grappled with him and wrested the gun from him. As the man fled, Zeigler fired.

BUILDERS BAN PLANE STUNTS

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—An echo of national air race fatalities sounded here today in the stand taken by the aircraft manufacturers' section of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce against stunt flying.

The manufacturers passed two resolutions, the first condemning stunt flying, "except as is necessary for the training of students and for scientific research by airplane manufacturers.

The second was more detailed, stating the step was necessary because "the aircraft industry in order to sell its products, must first convince the public that air transportation is a business and not a circus or dangerous novelty and because casualties during air races and individual stunts do incalculable harm to the industry."

YOUTH JAILED AS FIREBUG

Lowell, Sept. 25—Joseph A. Goulet, 23, 76 Fourth ave., blamed by police for a long series of incendiary fires in this city, was held under $5000 bail when arraigned in court today on four counts of arson.

Unable to furnish the bonds, he was ordered committed to jail to await trial October 4.

Goulet, who is married and is employed as a laborer by the Boston & Maine Railroad, is said by police to have admitted, after a police to have admitted, after a long grilling, that he set four fires.

He was arrested on a drunkenness charge by Officer Martin A. Molloy following two suspicious fires in Mt. Hope st. and Fourth ave., in the Pawtucketville district.

Cashier Kills Self So Bank Is Closed

Pontiac, Mich., Sept. 25 (INS)—The People's Savings Bank at Walled Lake, near here, was closed today when, according to police, Clarence A. Chafey, 42, the cashier, committed suicide. The financial condition of the bank is not known.

Boy Hit by Auto as Breaks Out of Line

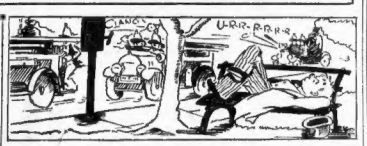
The boy was taken to a doctor's office where he was found to be suffering from contusions and abrasions of the body and right arm.

'Third Rail Rickey' a Real Movie Maker

One Drink Sets All East Boston's Firemen Jumping to 1-Man Audience



A new kind of rum is being sold in East Boston. Take a few drinks and nothing satisfies one except to see fire apparatus, and plenty of it, rushing through the streets.

A citizen tanked up on the new "third rail" early today and here is what happened: Within 18 minutes three alarms were sounded from the same district. One from Porter and Bremen sts., another from Marion and Chelsea sts. and another from Marion and Bennington sts.

Plenty of apparatus would have responded to the single alarms, but a card clerk and fire headquarters, confused by the rapid succession of alarms, sounded a second alarm which brought an additional fleet of apparatus from Boston and Charlestown.

The drunk was locked up.

Because his parents locked him out last night and left the key in the lock, Joseph McManus, 17, of Witt st., Lynn, was under arrest today for attempted breaking and entering and carrying burglar's tools.

A dozen police sent to South and Summer sts., Lynn, following a report that someone was breaking into a store chased him through back yards, firing shots. Later, in Witt st., two patrolmen heard a sound in a vestibule and found McManus trying to force out the key at his home so he could use his own to enter. He admitted the attempted store break, police said, and will be tried Oct. 23.

WORK STARTED ON RUNWAY AT AIRPORT

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Work was started today on the proposed 2800-foot runway, extending east and west, at Boston Municipal Airport when park department engineers, under John Murphy and James Walsh, made the first soundings on the mud flats.

The airport is not as yet an A-1-A flying field and the new runway is necessary to receive this rating from the Department of Commerce. As soon as the airport is so rated the flying schools operated by Skyways, Curtiss and the Independents will be inspected and approved.

The next two weeks will be spent making soundings to ascertain the amount of fill needed and then bids will be asked by the city for the work of filling. It is hoped to have the fill well under way, if not completed, before real cold weather sets in.

READY IN SPRING

The fill will settle during the winter months and next spring will bring the levelling and grading of the fill. Then the runway will be ready for landing and takeoffs.

According to officials, the present westward take-off presents a slight hazard, since planes must cross the buildings on Jefferies Point. The new runway will eliminate this hazard, with planes leaving the ground to the west, and flying out over the harbor.

"Next summer will see Boston's airport the only one in New England with no obstacles on any side," said Albert L. Edson, airport superintendent.

"Planes, no matter how large, can approach the airport very low, and land on the end of any runway, having more than a half a mile in front of them. This is the first step toward extending the airport out in Governor's Island."

NEW CHINESE STUDENT

Jimmie Chin having obtained his limited commercial pilot's license, brought Charles Lee, 21, of Union st., Lynn, to the Boston Airport today to sign up with Skyways for a private pilot's course of instruction.

Yee was signed by Clem McIsaac, operations manager of the company, and immediately took his physical examination from Maj. Charles M. Cummings, airport flight surgeon. Charlie Emerson, chief pilot of Skyways, gave Yee his first instruction.

SPORTS FLIER

A Bellanca cabin monoplane owned by C. B. Rob of New York, was flown to Boston by Dean Ivan Lamb to pick up the owner and take him back to Gotham. During his stay here, Lamb was pointed out as the chief of the Honduras air force, back in 1920. In those days Lamb flew a Curtiss "Jenny," OX-5 powered, and made bombs out of tomato cans.

GEN. BROWN LEAVING

Maj.-Gen. Preston Brown, former commanding officer of the 1st Corps Area, arrived from Rolling Field, Wash., to close his private affairs in this city, and bid his friends good-bye.

General Brown has been transferred from the office of the chief of the air corps in Washington to the Panama Canal Zone. He takes up his new duties October 10. Lieut. Ralph Giovannolli piloted the general's Douglass observation plane.

EAST COAST BUSY

East Coast Aircraft, New England service agents for Wright Whirlwind engines, is so swamped with work that a night crew is on duty six nights a week, according to H. E. Wallis, service manager. The largest crew ever employed by the company is working days, but the night boys are necessary to keep ahead of the work.

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. John Hertz to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process. The following is the statement of Mr. Hertz "Quality is Everything"

JOHN HERTZ

Chairman of the Board
Omnibus Corporation of America

Owners of all the busses in New York and Chicago. Founder of the Yellow Cab Co. Director Forman-State National Bank, Chicago.

"A champion race horse or a leader in industry, I have found, is seldom a result of chance. Concentration upon quality—that's what counts. When I read the personal reports of your distinguished visitors, revealing your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos, I knew that you were on the right track. Quality is everything—and the American people demand and appreciate the best."

John Hertz

$19 DAYS

An event originated by Summerfield's in Boston—justly famous all over New England for value—now even greater because of previous market conditions that enabled us to buy infinitely better quality, finer fashion, greater variety than has been possible at such prices since the Armistice.

An event that brings you, we believe, the best furniture values in New England—items at cost, below cost—saving of $10 to $46 on every item—items that make merchandising experts wonder how it's possible to manufacture them, much less sell them for as little as $19. An event planned for many weeks, to include only quality right, fashion right merchandise at savings that cannot fail to add glory to our chain of one price, street floor sales.

Extra Salespeople and Cashiers

We dislike to quote comparative prices but because these values are so very UNUSUAL and because we so sincerely want everyone to share them before prices go up, as is predicted, we here give you the exact regular prices at which we usually sell them.

You will even find, if you compare closely, that in most cases we deliberately UNDERSTATE these values because we want you to be surprised and not disappointed when you come in. Our headline says "$29 to $65 values for $19," yet we actually offer $69 and $79 items at $19. In every case, unbelievable as some of these regular prices seem, you will find that we have given you, as is the Summerfield policy, a conservative rather than an optimistic figure.

DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 206

This maple chest with bracket feet, straight front and slanted top is a good example of those pieces of furniture which served two-fold purposes for the early settlers. The lower section is a chest of drawers, the upper one being smaller than the rest.

For writing, the slant top is pulled down and supported by brackets on each side. It is equipped inside with pigeonholes, drawers, and proper space for writing materials—and even secret compartments for important papers, safety vaults being unknown at that time. The slant top consists of a broad central piece, strengthened at the ends with narrow pieces whose grain runs at right angles to the central panel.

Native woods were especially appropriate for the simple furniture of the early Colonists. The chief charms of this piece lie in the beautiful grain of the wood, the simplicity of the style, and its durability. (Exhibited at the Museum of Fine Arts.)

Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of antiques of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston. American War Mothers' Chapters Planned

By NANCY BREWSTER

The national organization of American War Mothers has invaded Massachusetts, and through the Bay State organizer, Mrs. Corabelle G. Francis of Newton, anticipates the formation of several local chapters.

When Mrs. Virgil McClure, national president, comes to Boston next month to attend the American Legion Auxiliary national convention plans will be drawn for a concentrated drive for members and chapters throughout the Commonwealth.

Organized in 1917 and chartered by act of Congress in February, 1925, the organization is pledged to perpetuate and develop the spirit that prompted world service to maintain the ties of fellowship born of that service and to assist and further any patriotic work; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to work for the welfare of the army and navy; to assist in any way in their power, men and women who served and were wounded or incapacitated in the World War, and to foster and promote friendship and understanding between America and the Allies in the World War.

MAJOR ACTIVITIES

Major activities of the American War Mothers' Organization are this year child welfare and organization.

"A group of 10 women, mothers of sons or daughters who served in the World War, may form a chapter," explains Mrs. Francis.

A meeting is scheduled for next Saturday at the Hotel Statler at 10 a. m., Mrs. Francis announces, and at that time, those chapters recently formed in Boston, Cambridge, Gloucester and Worcester, will come together to elect and install state officers, thus completing the Massachusetts slate.

In a plea to Massachusetts women, eligible for membership, Mrs. Francis enumerates those causes which draw upon the national organization of war mothers for support and in the remedy of which Massachusetts is soon to have a share.

"We are told that the number of men in hospitals will increase for 40 years," she continues. "That 710,000 veterans have filed claims for compensation, showing they are in need. That 180,000 veterans only receive compensation. That 27,500 veterans die annually; that 4000 of these die of tuberculosis. That government hospitals and institutions are crowded and there are each day hundreds of applicants for hospitalization, for whom there are no beds. That there are 152,000 children of men who are permanently disabled. That there are 50,000 children of men temporarily disabled. That a quarter of a million children of dead or disabled World War soldiers, recognized by the government as such, who need care and supervision."

Scarf Topcoat for Football Games

THE BURLY raccoon is at last supplanted; tweeds will attend college football games more often. Furs of sleeker sorts will enrich stadium backgrounds, of course. But there will be more cloth present than for some football seasons; the reason being the new beauty of tweeds.

* * *

NOT WITHOUT some comments on the newer silhouettes, could be writ the tweed coat's glory. Outlines count when college girls are buying—weary salespersons appreciate just how much!

Caps silhouettes thrill much less than they did a season ago. But there is still a generous flare to the skirt of the college topcoat. And the narrow belt in self fabric or leather is a ubiquitous waistline adornment.

* * *

IN ADDITION to these general style features, there is the scarf neckline to be reckoned with. College girls adore it, and coats exploiting it will probably get to go to more games than coats of any other type. There are scarfs and scarfs. Highlying scarfs of self-material and petite scarfs of flat fur.

* * *

THE ENSEMBLE pictured is suitable for the college wardrobe, for travel, or for the woman frequently motoring in and out of town. It is of loosely woven Scotch tweed toned green, flecked in black and yellow. The coat is lined in green silk, is double breasted, with belt of the material and scarf of the tweed, which may be worn thrown back or snugly buttoned to the shoulders. The skirt is a wrap-around, with rounded edge; the vest-like sleeveless blouse is of beige silk-pique, and is buttoned down center front with crystal buttons.

* * *

THE MATCHING beret is of the tweed, and dips tam-o-shanter style to a low back line.

* * *

OF COURSE, other combinations of hats and blouses can vary this outfit, while the tweed coat may be worn over frocks of silk or wool.

* * *

YOU MAY have wondered whether green would return to favor with the fall and winter season. Word is received that exclusive specialty shops are featuring green strongly as a winter color. Green tweeds and green woolen frocks are endorsed for sports. Green in a bright shade is shown as an accenting color with black and navy blue. Jade jewelry with silver is a clever accessory note.

FEDERAL PROBE OF KIDNAPING IS ORDERED

A thorough investigation of activities in Boston of a vice ring, to which Mrs. Thelma Sibley Salerno of Weston claimed to have been sold in New York, was ordered by Assistant U. S. Attorney John W. Schenck today.

The girl, snatched from the arms of her husband of a day, was rescued by police and is being held as a material witness against five men charged with kidnaping her.

"I never heard of Thelma Sibley, but if she lives in Weston that brings her under our jurisdiction," said Attorney Schenck. "We will get in touch with the authorities in Mineola for information."

The men, said to be members of the New York vice ring, were booked as Nicholas Gavassas, 27; Sidney Erin, 28; Jerry Batadis, 26; Nerses Arriman, 26, and John Karagas, 24, all of Manhattan.

SAYS $500 WAS PAID FOR HER

Mrs. Salerno, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Alfred Sibley of Love lane, Weston, told Mineola police that two weeks ago a man passing through Waltham told her she could get a job in New York.

She went to that city 10 days ago and met the man whose name she did not know, at the Pennsylvania Station. He took her to a combination speakeasy and restaurant, where the girl said she was told she was a hostess, and later learned her "benefactor" had received $500 for bringing her there.

Last Sunday Michael Salerno 28 of Port Washington, L. I., entered the speakeasy, became infatuated with Miss Sibley and proposed marriage.

TAKEN FROM FIVE CAPTORS

According to her story she fled with him and they were married. After a wedding party five men leaped from a machine, tore the bride from the bridegroom's arms and bore her away in the automobile.

Salerno was overpowered, but he reported the matter to the police promptly and the men were arrested, with the bride a prisoner in their car, early yesterday.

Investigation in Weston revealed that Thelma had been in charge of a girls' welfare home, and later was employed as a nurse girl in Wayland.

Bodu Tossed in Bay After Taxi Slaying

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—Joseph Perrone, Brooklyn taxi driver, told police he had taken two men to Barren Island last night, and that when they arrived one of the men got out of the car and opened fire on the other, killing him instantly. The driver said he was forced to help throw the body into Jamaica Bay. The slayer escaped.

$1000 to Find Who Put Run on Bank

Pine Bluff, Ark., Sept. 25 (AP)—A reward of $1000 is up today for identity of persons who yesterday circulated rumors that the Merchants & Planters Bank & Trust Co. faced insolvency. The run on the institution resulted in withdrawal of $30,000.

STATE BANKING LEAGUE OPENS 42D MEET

Calling attention to the increasing supply of funds for mortgage loans, Ernest A. Hale, secretary of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League, made his report today at the 42d annual convention of the league at the New Ocean House, Swampscott.

He recommended enlargement of league headquarters and personnel, and a closer co-operation with all other organizations interested in the bettering of home conditions.

President Ansley M. Johnson commented on the qualifications of persons filling positions as treasurer, members of the security committee and of the board of directors of co-operative banks.

Members of the security committee, he said, are the backbone of the bank.

Raymond P. Harold of Worcester, chairman of the state-wide advertising committee, reported receipts and expenditures of more than $11,000 spent in newspaper advertising during the last six months in an educational campaign.

H. Raymond Johnson of Reading, chairman of the legislative committee, reviewed its activities.

WOMEN BOOST SHOE TRADE

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—One industry which exhibited capacity to stimulate exports of its products during August was the shoe trade.

The Commerce Department noticed today that August exports of footwear from the United States were nearly 12 per cent greater than those of July, whereas a year ago the August exports were less than in July.

Most of the new business was due to a better demand for women's and children's shoes in the United Kingdom, Canada, Hawaii, Mexico and Cuba.

R. I. Mill Orders Permanent Closing

North Smithfield, R. I., Sept. 25 (AP)—Employes of the Forestdale Company were notified today that the plant would suspend operations permanently as soon as stock on hand was run off. The company manufactures cotton yarn and has been operating on a curtailed basis with about 125 employes. The company is owned by the Hayward Schuster interests of East Douglas, Mass.

Negro Lynched for Attack in Georgia

WORK IN 'MOROCCO' WINS NEW FILM ROLE FOR MARLENE DIETRICH

WOMAN SPY BASIS OF STORY

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25—Marlene Dietrich had all her plans made to sail for Europe to clasp her small daughter in her arms and visit her husband. That, she figured was the one thing she wanted to do, but Paramount had other ideas. Here was Dietrich bound to be a sensation in "Morocco" right at the studio and if she went to Europe no telling whether she would ever return or not.

B. P. Schulberg took a look at "Morocco" and in his report said it was the best picture their company had made and that she was bound to be the biggest sensation of any actress on their lot. The result was a hurried conference. Josef Von Sternberg brought forth a story he had written called "Dishonored," and don't confuse that with "The Dishonored Lady" for it is a copyrighted title Paramount has in its possession for a long time. The story is not that of a lady who seeks her pleasure unlawfully, but that of a woman spy.

Louella Parsons

The picture will go into production immediately with Von Sternberg directing and Marlene's reunion with her husband and child will be postponed.

THE MEMORY of the debonair Leo Dietrichstein, "the screen lover," will always remain in this writer's mind. There may be other "great lovers," and who is there among us who cannot see the part for Adolphe Menjou, but we will never entirely say "No" to put Dietrichstein out of our heads. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is going to make a movie version of the Dietrichstein play with Dr. Paul Feiss directing. While M. G. M. does not say the story is intended for Adolphe Menjou, who else is there who could do justice to that part? The last talkie he made for Paramount before he went to Europe was "The Concert," very much on the order of "The Great Lover" and also a Dietrichstein play.

THE CONTINUAL BATTLE for plays and novels has resulted in producers reading galley proofs and buying stories before they are so much as started. Charles R. Rogers bought "Millie" from the galley proofs and now he has bought "Dark Flame" by Nevis Shane. Shane's book will not be published until November, but it appealed to Mr. Rogers as having the same sort of interest that he found in "Millie." It is the story of a member of royalty who marries a street walker. "Dark Flame" will be Charlie Rogers' second for R. K. O. He is moving right along

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S comedy is finished. There are those who say the future of the motion picture industry hangs on the reception of his silent version of "City Lights." There are others who say even though the theaters are crowded and Charlie gets his usual patronage it is a proof that the talkies are a thing of the past. Comedies have never been in much demand. Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy have just started on "Another Fine Mess" to be directed by James Parrott.

AMONG THE TIDBITS offered to our listening ear is the new contract just signed by Hallan Cooley and Sam Hardy. These two are to do a brother act or team, if you will, in a series of comedy shorts for Universal. We are also told that Jean Hersholt, who didn't do so well as the Chilean in "East is West," is to play the doctor in "The Criminal Code." Jean will have to look a dignified man of science. The report is that Norma Shearer's next for M. G. M. will be "The Lady in the Evening Gown." So far no official confirmation has gone forth as to what she will do when the baby is old enough for her to leave him. Yves Mirande, a French author, has written the story.

LATE CURTAIN FOR NEW COMEDY

New York, Sept. 25.

With the opening on September 29, of Molnar's comedy, "One, Two, Three," which will be Gilbert Miller's first production of the new season, Mr. Miller will give New York audiences the innovation of a 9:15 p. m. curtain on a legitimate stage play. Mr. Miller explains:

"In the production of 'One, Two, Three' I still try to inaugurate a new unit of entertainment rather than a new form. Movie goers are accustomed to take their entertainment in one solid chunk in the shape of the feature picture, and I want to attempt a similar plan in the theater.

"In raising the curtain on Molnar's comedy, 'One, Two, Three,' at 9:15 p. m., I should appeal to the latter group of amusement seekers. Molnar's satire, judging from its successful presentation on the Continent, should play for one hour and forty-five minutes.

"With this comedy we are employing the old custom of presenting a curtain raiser, offering another playlet of Molnar's at 8:30, thus making the complete entertainment a Molnar evening. By this means we hope to cater both to those who dine early and can arrive at the theater at 8:30, and to those who prefer a late dinner and reach the theater at 9:15.

MALKIN ADDED TO STAFF

Joseph Malkin, famous violoncellist, has joined the faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music, Mr. Malkin succeeds the late Joseph Adamowski as instructor in violoncello and ensemble. Mr. Malkin gained a reputation at an early age as a performer on the violoncello. He was born at Odessa, Russia. His music education began at the age of 10, when he was started as a violinist. Two years later he turned his attention to the violoncello, becoming a pupil of Ladislas Alois. In 1898-99 Mr. Malkin toured Denmark, Sweden and Norway with notable success. He was appointed in 1900 first violoncellist of the Philharmonic Orchestra, Berlin

Joseph Malkin

In 1910 Mr. Malkin resumed his appearances as soloist, visiting the principal cities of Europe and the United States.

PUBLIX READY FOR BANNER WEEK

Paramount-Publix Corporation has set the dates for the national prosperity week from October 5 to 11. Paramount executives are showing their faith in reports from all their sources of information concerning the increasing prosperity of America by embarking on an unprecedented program of production.

This is most conspicuously evident in the number of releases planned for this season. Originally 65 feature talking pictures were contemplated for the new film year. Now the indications are, with business on the upgrade, that there will be 70 pictures produced by Paramount, if not more. In addition, there will be 104 one-reel short subjects, 26 two-reel comedies, 12 pictorials, 18 Paramount screen songs and 18 Paramount talkartoons. In France there will be made about 70 productions duplicating the American pictures in various languages.

The feature pictures include "The Spoilers," which tomorrow stars its second week at the Uptown and Olympia. Already Gary Cooper, star of "The Spoilers," has completed "Morocco," spectacular romance of the Foreign Legion. Cooper is likewise starring out on a similarly ambitious production with "Fighting Caravans."

For George Bancroft's new maritime picture, "Typhoon Bill," several large seagoing vessels were chartered and manned by large crews. Harold Lloyd has been making his second talking picture, "Feet First," the most lavish effort of his career. On this comedy, which is shortly to be released by Paramount, he aims to spend $1,000,000.

"The Sea God," the latest vehicle for Richard Arlen and Fay Wray, was also done with a wealth of atmospheric effects

Paramount produced "Follow Thru," the star of which, Buddy Rogers, will be in person at the Metropolitan beginning October 2.

Paramount Publix Corporation announces that it not only finds money circulating more freely, leading it to celebrate Prosperity Week, but it also intends to see that it puts still more money in circulation itself.

PARADE FILM ON ALL THIS WEEK

Folks who last week were unfortunate enough to have missed seeing the greatest parade in the history of Massachusetts, had the opportunity of seeing a splendid pictorial and sound record of the Tercenienary parade at the new B. F. Keith's and the Keith Albee theaters.

Excellent close-ups of participating dignitaries and the many hundreds of beautiful historical and commercial floats and costumes may be seen. Of particular excellence are some of the pictures of the guests of honor of the city of Boston. One in particular is of the official car carrying Mayor Curley and the distinguished guests of the city, Mayor Salter of Boston, England, and William Randolph Hearst, the latter towering above the Englishman and even outtopping our own robust mayor, enthusiastically waving his bronze rimmed 10-gallon Stetson in response to the cheering, enthusiastic Bostonians who had turned out to pay homage to the Bay State and her celebrated visitors.

Owing to the numerous requests of interested patrons, the Pathe News containing the pictures of the Tercentenary parade will be held and shown during this entire week.

Tiffany has added Marie Astaire to the cast of "The Third Alarm."

HYMN SAVED HIS LIFE ON CANNIBALS' ISLAND

TO MOST AMERICANS today cannibals are known only through the pages of fiction and other literature, but to Capt. A. E. Folger, here with the Captive Whale exhibition, they are a real and terrible personal memory.

While watching the crowds pouring into the special car alongside Mechanics Building in Huntington ave. to see the 55-foot, 65-ton whale, Capt. Folger recounted how on one whaling trip about 45 years ago he was shipwrecked on an island in the south seas. His companions were killed, and just as the natives grabbed "Whalin' Gus" he started to sing a hymn. The chief liked it so well that he demanded more and Gus sang until he was black in the face. The chief ordered him kept captive and made him sort of a court soloist.

After many months he was permitted some liberty and eventually made his escape in a native boat and was picked up at sea by a whaler. Gus is an inexhaustible source of stories of the days when New Bedford and Nantucket were the greatest whaling centers in the world.

During his 81 years of life, 60 of them spent in active work on whaling vessels, he was shipwrecked more than a score of times, thrown into the boiling seas from small boats, wrecked by the lashing tails of the sea mammals, and gone through more than 40 mutinies. Today, hale and hearty, with not one single gray hair in his head, he shares interest to the thousands of visitors with his gigantic whale.

It was a great-grandfather of "Whalin' Gus," who first mapped the Atlantic coast line, from which a map was engraved by Benjamin Franklin. This was used for many decades by schools and mariners. Four generations of the Folger family were whalers out of New Bedford and Nantucket and the family name occupies a prominent place in the history of the whaling industry.

The whale exhibition will be here for a limited time only. It is open to the public daily from 11 in the morning until 11 at night, including Sunday.

Stage Who's Who

Douglass Dumbrille was born in Hamilton, Ontario, and began his career in "The Bishop's Carriage" in which he toured Canada. He has played stock all over the United States and appeared with Hackett in "Macbeth," in "Going Up," "The Horse Thief," "The School Mistress," "Rain," "Princess Flavia," "The Three Musketeers," "A Month in the Country." "The Call of Life" and many other shows. He plays the villain, Ivanoff, in "Princess Charming," at the Shubert.

"Third Alarm"

Franklin Farnum has been added to the cast of Tiffany's "The Third Alarm," now in the later stages of production, with Anita Louise, James Hall, Jean Hersholt, Paul Hurst, Hobart Bosworth and others in principal roles.

"Brothers"

Two more players have been added to "Brothers" by Columbia. Richard Tucker and Maurice Black are the latest members of the cast.

LEADING ROLE FOR GIRL, 20

Constance Cummings, an unknown, has been selected as leading lady to Ronald Colman in his next picture. Miss Cummings has reddish blond hair. Her smile closely resembles that of Vilma Banky, another once selected out of the unknown as leading lady for Colman.

Miss Cummings is 20. During her work as a dancer in "The Little Show," Sam Harris saw in her a possibility as an actress. And so, when "June Moon" went into rehearsal, he engaged Miss Cummings as understudy to Miss Linda Watkins. Constance had only one opportunity—at a matinee, when she stepped forward, did her work well, and then retired to be heard from no more.

On the advice of a friend, Miss Cummings did a scene from "The Doctor's Dilemma," in taking a screen test.

That's how she got to Hollywood.

TYPICAL GIRL TO BE NAMED TOMORROW

One more day and the search for the Typical New England Girl will be at an end.

At sundown tomorrow, her identity will be known and announced. Then the work of the Typical New England Girl Editor and the five judges will be over.

Then the lucky young woman will begin preparations for that trip to Paris as the guest of the Boston Evening American and Gloria Swanson.

LUNCHEON TOMORROW

Tomorrow noon, eight finalists in the contest, selected by the judges at the meeting last Monday, will gather at luncheon in the Hotel Statler as the guests of the Boston Evening American to enjoy luncheon with those who sit in judgment over their feminine charms and personality and culture.

And when the girl who typifies all New England womanhood is selected, her name will be sent to United Artists, New York City, to be listed as one of the 25 young women of the country who are to enjoy the hospitality of Miss Gloria Swanson.

Free trip to Paris! That's the goal and the prize.

Tomorrow we shall see!

WEEK IN PARIS

"What a Widow," Miss Swanson's latest talkie, which is soon to be shown at Loew's State Theater, will give the public some idea of what Parisian magnificences are in store for the lucky winner. In that film Miss Swanson "does" Paris as will THE TYPICAL NEW ENGLAND GIRL from the moment she sails from New York on the palatial ocean liner, Ile de France, in December.

There will be a week in the French capital for Miss New England, $200 to enjoy those seven days in style, a return trip on the steamer Paris and stopover in New York.

It will be something to write home about, no doubt. Something for the cherished memories, the cultural advantages and the educational benefits.

Tomorrow, then, for the Typical New England Girl, whoever she is.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

Typewriter Hailed as Boon to Women

Editor Boston American:

It was a source of delight to me that your paper some time ago quoted a selection from the speech of a woman speaker who paid a high tribute to the typewriter.

"It is a fact that the typewriter has done more for women than the ballot," said another woman in Boston yesterday.

"Women have at last found a medium through which their special talents have shone to the advantage and profit of many a business man. Business in any city would be thoroughly crippled, if women typists should for any justifiable reason abandon their typewriters for a week," added this woman.

This is so true.

Then that letter advising women to co-operate more with men's societies instead of having independent organizations of their own, was very well put in your letter column, and I hope that it will be considered.

U. S. Law Bars Desirable Immigrants, Says Writer

Editor Boston American:

A recent Boston American editorial throws a gleam of new light on the immigration policy of this country. Any nation has the unquestioned right to keep out the undesirable aliens by enacting reasonable restrictions on immigration. President Hoover has lately sought to alleviate the burdens of unemployment by prohibiting the admission of those immigrants who are likely to become a public charge.

The crux of this problem lies in the selection of a safe criterion to determine the desirability of immigrants. In adopting and applying the principles of selective immigration, a common yard stick is required to measure the character and number of immigrants. It is unfortunate that the people of China, India and Japan have been unfairly treated under the Immigration Acts of 1924. Although the Naturalization Law of 1875 made the Chinese, Indians and Japanese ineligible for American citizenship, they are not necessarily undesirable immigrants. As a matter of fact, many immigrants of the desirable class do not intend to become citizens by naturalization.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis has significantly remarked that under the present immigration law many undesirable aliens are admitted, while numerous desirable immigrants are excluded. The American government could specify the qualifications of the desirable immigrants; and the state governments could regulate the wages, hours and conditions of the immigrants' work. Thus, the chief objection to immigrant labor as a competitor to American labor could be easily removed.

The United States should select the type of immigrants best suited to her national welfare. Sen. Albert Johnson of Washington now advocates the "universal quota" plan as a basis of immigration. At any rate, an American policy of selective immigration should have no discrimination against any class, nation or race. All immigrants should be judged on the same basis and admitted under the same conditions.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Local spirit is perhaps one of the greatest assets any community can possess. That spiritual endorsement of those that live in any community can make or break it. For a city to have the whole-hearted support of those living in it brings the entire atmosphere of the city to a much higher scale.

In many communities, and especially in small ones, you will almost always find a certain element therein offering nothing but cheap criticism. To these people there is only one reward. That is the branding of such a name on them. The ones who are all for their city in all kinds of times these people rate very low. Everyone should be proud of their community and defend and support it at all times, and those who do not find themselves "out."

To be true, criticism is necessary for progress and such is expected, but to hear the everlasting cry to the detriment of your community from the same ones gets monotonous, to say the least. The community that can boast of the support of its inhabitants and rely on their local pride to carry them through deserves the name of a real community.

Rape Foes of Burrell Who Would Bolt Nominee

Editor Boston American:

Why defeat Fred J. Burrell, legally nominated for state treasurer by the Republicans at the primaries?

Why defeat the purpose of the primaries, the choice of the voters?

The attitude assured by those who rebel against Burrell is that because the result is not to their liking, they must break away from the party nominee in satisfaction to the, own choice as that of the voters at the primaries.

Such is not in accord with the spirit of law and order.

If Burrell committed an indiscretion while in office, that is no crime. Others holding public office erred and are serving in redemption to making good.

That we may be fair, let us be just.

Compulsory Insurance Held Game for Lawyers

Editor Boston American:

Recently I read an article in your paper on compulsory insurance signed by Ralph P. Jamed, and I want to compliment him on his methods of accomplishing the reduction in rates on autos.

It is an undeniable fact that as the law is now it gives to the insurance company a right to rob the people by legal methods.

Compulsory insurance, as originally intended, was for the purpose of compensation to those injured by autos regardless of who was at fault.

It has now become as many things do—a game to be played by the lawyers and courts.

There is not any necessity for having more than one company handle all this type of business and if the State does not want to handle it it could be let out on a competitive bid.

By confining this to one company and equalizing the rates it would not be necessary to charge more than $20 for each registered auto, either pleasure car or truck.

It being compulsory there is no necessity of paying commissions to salesmen.

In conclusion, I wish to say I hope that by Jan. 1 the Massachusetts' auto owners will decide to, either run their cars without the compulsory insurance or else all agree to cease using automobiles, or probably continue on as good suckers and allow themselves to be rygged again.

Terms Pension Bill for Veterans Unfair

Editor Boston American:

In reading this evening's American I note that General Foote may have to resign as commanding officer of the 26th Division. That is bad, as he was a very good officer. But what interests me greater is this. It says Gen. Poole receives about $200 a month disability which is two-thirds base pay for a permanent disability. How is it that these officers are given such a large disability allowance and are also allowed to hold down a position that pays a large salary?

There are officers holding down positions in the veterans' bureau drawing a large salary and are also receiving big disability pensions. Is it fair?

An enlisted man is totally disabled, and under the new pension law can collect $40 a month. This pension, by the way, is the greatest farce that Congress has ever passed.

Where are the Veterans' organizations when bills like that are put over?

When the bills are passed, the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars both take credit for putting it over. But if either body of men were on the job, officers would not be receiving $200 a month and the private and non-commissioned officer about $30 per month for the same disability. Get together you Veterans organizations, and fight, or else disband.

ALL INVITED TO MARTHA LEE'S SCHOOL

Here's a personal invitation from Martha Lee to every girl and woman in New England to attend the Boston American's free cooking school, which will be held in the Grand Ball Room of the Hotel Statler, on the afternoons of September 30, October 1, 2 and 3.

Whether you are an experienced home-maker, weary of the eternal round of chops, potatoes and apple pie, or a September bride struggling with the mysteries of culinary weights and measures, we can promise you a mighty worthwhile series of lecture demonstrations during this four-day school.

LOW-COST RECIPES

If you belong to the great army of housekeepers who must watch their market-basket expenditures closely, you'll appreciate the special help on low-cost recipes. If you are a hostess who prides herself on smart luncheons and attractive dinners, Mrs. Cross and Martha Lee have many new pointers on table service and decorations, and interesting new dishes.

You'll find the recipes clear and explicit and the demonstrations can be seen easily by every one present.

This is Mrs. Cross' third visit to Boston, and the fourth session of this annual cooking school. Martha Lee feels she's especially fortunate in being able to secure the assistance of a woman so well known in the home economics world.

KEYNOTE TO LECTURES

Good cooking and good health, we know, go hand in hand, and the well-fed household is the one in which happiness and success are bound to shine. But that doesn't mean the well-fed family always has the largest grocery bill. This will be positively demonstrated at the cooking school this year. Simple foods, well chosen, properly cooked and nicely served are what really constitute good cookery and will be the keynote of Mrs. Cross' demonstration lectures.

The doors of the Statler Ballroom will be opened each day at 1 o'clock and there will be a musical program until 2 p. m., when the lectures commence. Judging by the capacity attendance of previous years, a word to the wise should be sufficient—come early to be sure of a seat. And, remember, this is Martha Lee's personal invitation to YOU to be present.

Happy Jack Gets So Fat He Can't Move

Squirrel Wedged in Gutter of Union Club From Eating Many Peanuts

Happy Jack, as all little folks know, is no comment upon pay day, but the bedtime story nom de plume of the gray squirrel. If you're all in your little nighties and ready for the sandman we'll tell you about Happy Jack's adventure.

He climbed into the gutter of the Union Club roof above Park st. yesterday and began hunting for late season pigeon eggs on which the Union Club pays him a royalty. He was hungry, but he didn't find any.

Right across a narrow alley was the Boston University School of Religious Education, whose students crowded to the windows to encourage his efforts.

Happy Jack sat in the gutter and bemoaned his plight, so the students got peanuts and began tossing them to him.

The nuts would land on the slate roof and roll down into the gutter and Happy Jack would pounce on them with gusto and he didn't have to save the shells to collect royalties like he does on pigeon eggs.

Well, children, the students threw peanuts at Happy Jack for six whole hours and Happy Jack ate all they fed him, and at the end of that time he had grown so fat that he was wedged in the gutter and couldn't move.

If it had rained he'd have drowned, but it didn't rain, and the students sent for two agents of the Animal Rescue League, who pried him out, and when he reached home he received a good sound spanking for being so piggish.

Now scram for bed.

Solace Found in Sobbing Sorrow To Sympathetic Admirer

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Cathie Paige marries her wealthy, elderly employer, Alfred Farnsworth. He is a kind and indulgent husband, but Cathie is lonely in the gloomy family mansion. Soft-footed Chinese servants, under Cheong, have quarters in the basement and a sullen maid, Marguerite, in possession of unwholesome family secrets, has a room on the third floor.

Cathie depends upon the friendship of Gordon Moore, a business associate of her husband, Chester, Farnsworth's son, who hates Cathie, watches with malicious interest. Cathie realizes Chester is trying to make trouble, but has no idea she is being gossiped about until her mother and her elder sister, Ruth, call to tell her.

Cathie turns to Moore for comfort, and sobs out her troubles in his arms.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 31

(Copyright, 1930 King Features Synd., Inc.)

THE LOGS in the fireplace had turned to pink ashes, the light of a single lamp threw a faint golden glow from the far corner of the long, dark room. Cathie still lay in Gordon's arms. The sobs that had racked her, that had torn at her throat, and blinded her eyes, had ceased. She lay still and content.

She knew that it was late. She ought to go upstairs and dress for dinner. She must look a fright, dress all crushed, eyes all red. Alfred would be coming . . . this couldn't go . . .

Her eyelids fluttered open. She opened her mouth to speak:

"Gordon, I think—"

His mouth covered hers. He wouldn't let her talk, wouldn't let her think. He was kissing her again. The shudder it let him . . . in a minute she'd send him away, for always . . . because she was married, and she loved him, and this couldn't go on, it wasn't right.

Farewell Kiss

"Cathie, darling, I love you so!"

"I know—I know—"

"Kiss me!"

"Gordon, it must be late. We ought to—"

"Kiss me again, Cathie."

"This is the last time," she whispered, and clung to him, crying a little again because it would really have to be the last time.

And how do people that love each other like this ever part? Her lips found his. Don't send him away right now. . . . In a minute . . . in a minute . . .

He sat up suddenly, gently untwined her clinging arms.

"Sh! . . . Someone at the door!"

Cathie stiffened, felt sick and guilty.

She waited dully, while he strode to the hall door, opened it, so that the bright light from without streamed in.

"It's your nerves," she told him, a bit reproachfully when he came back after shutting the door behind him.

"I suppose so. There was no one there." But he knew that he hadn't been mistaken. There had been someone. "My watch has stopped. Have you the time?"

Trouble Brews

She shook her head.

"No. But it must be way past 3. I wonder if Alfred has been kept for a conference? Funny Chester didn't bring any message. I hope there's nothing wrong!"

"I must go. I should never have come" he said. He began to walk up and down excitedly.

Cathie lit another lamp, tried to smooth her ruffled hair.

"You poor kid. You poor little chick . . . and I, sending things worse. Oh, I blame myself, it's all my fault. It could have been avoided. My God, what a mess!"

She listened, vaguely troubled. She didn't want him to suffer for her, but it was nice . . . oh, so nice, to have somebody care . . .

"Don't! Please don't, Gordon. It couldn't be helped. I wouldn't have it different. I've been happy since I've known you loved me. I'm happy now . . . oh, don't mind my crying. . . . It's because I'm happy . . . and nothing will ever matter again—"

"My darling! My darling girl!"

"No, no, no. You must go. We mustn't see each other any more!"

"Yes, I must go." They clung to each other. His cheek was wet with her tears.

Talk of Divorce

"This is good-bye," he said, how much later he did not know The pink ashes in the fireplace had turned gray. The fire was out. Cathie still leaned heavily against his shoulder, her face close to him. "Can I kiss you

Husband Stops Talking

Hubby Said It With Notes, Is Claim

When George Duncan became peeved at his wife, Ina, he wouldn't speak to her, but communicated with her by means of notes.

That charge was among many similarly unusual charges set out by Mrs. Duncan of Leominster when she appeared before Judge Arthur E. Beane in Middlesex Probate Court at East Cambridge yesterday, seeking separate support and a decree for justifiable living apart.

Duncan was also charged with making threats against her life and the lives of their two children. In addition she accused him of forbidding her to leave the house or to communicate with members of her family or relatives, refusing to go to bed and sleeping fully clothed, on a couch in the living room when angry with her, and with cutting the wires so that she could not use the telephone.

Under direct examination by her attorney, William J. Bannon, Mrs. Duncon related that on several occasions when she left the house in defiance of her husband's orders, she would find herself locked out on her return.

Duncan is contesting the action.

BOY IS FREED OF DRUNK DRIVING

Although he admitted he had had two drinks a short time before being arrested, John A. Folsom, 18, Braintree high school junior, was found not guilty of drunken driving by Judge Avery in Quincy court today. He was fined $50 for operating negligently.

Motor Vehicle Inspector Everett Gardner arrested Folsom after the car he was driving figured in a minor collision. Three youths who were in the car with him testified Folsom was not drunk. All admitted having "a glass of beer" in the "hell's kitchen" section of East Braintree.

Sergt. Edward Cahill, on duty at the station when Folsom was booked, also testified the student was not intoxicated.

Charlestown Boy Reaches New York, Hardly Able to Walk or Get His Breath

Seriously ill, his stage career perhaps at an end, Jack Donahue, the lanky Charlestown musical comedy star, stricken yesterday in Cincinnati, reached New York today in a very weak condition.

Friends who accompanied him assisted him from the train. The feet that carried him dancing to fame shuffled a new step up the platform at the Pennsylvania. He was obliged to stop every few feet gasping for breath and obviously suffering.

He was taken immediately to his home in West 138th st., where specialists waited to attend him. High blood pressure and complications was the report from Cincinnati, where his stage hit, "Sons o' Guns," was forced to close because of his illness.

His wife and three children, notified of his collapse, awaited him at home. His mother, Mrs. Julia Donahue of 11 Union st., Charlestown, and his sister, Mrs. Warren Hookway, left Boston for New York on the 1 o'clock train today.

Donahue's illness is believed to result from complications of an ailment he suffered five years ago, at which time his life hung by a slender thread and he was in bed for many weeks.

McLean Takes Home Clock, Boston's Gift

A beautiful banjo clock, the product of Greater Boston artisans, was Mayor Curley's gift to Maj.-Gen. Hugh Havelock McLean, lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick, tercentenary guest of the city, when he called at City Hall today to pay his parting respects.

On the clock are the British and American colors. It is inscribed:

"Presented to Hon. Hugh Havelock McLean, K. C. V. O., D. L. D., Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of New Brunswick, by the City of Boston, Hon. James M. Curley, Mayor, Boston's Tercentenary, 1930."

Miss Constance Carter of Porter st., Melrose, and William F. Cowles of Carney ter., Melrose, were slightly injured today when their automobiles were in collision at Gooch and First sts., Melrose. Both machines were wrecked, that of Miss Carter being overturned.

Loads of Fun Getting Lost

NOT A SIGN OF WORRY. Picked up in the heart of the shopping district, these two youngsters, Stanley Sadowski and Alfred Kostigan, of the South End, were taken by police to the Lagrange st. station to await the appearance of their parents. One of the youngsters stuck to his toy fire engine for his enjoyment, but the other made merry by donning a policeman's hat and blowing a policeman's whistle. He kept traffic at the station moving. They think getting lost is just loads of fun. (Staff photo.)

PARENTS CLAIM LOST BOYS

After an exciting day as guests of police of the Lagrange st. station two small boys, picked up in Washington st., were taken home in the late afternoon, protesting volubly.

They are Stanley Sadowski, three, of 6 Medford ct., South End, and Alfred Kostigan, two, of 12 Medford ct.

Clad largely in blue overalls and dragging a toy fire engine, the children were found by Traffic Officer O'Rourke looking over conditions at Washington and Lagrange sts. today.

Taken to Station 4 they displayed a healthy curiosity regarding police equipment, but volunteered no information concerning themselves.

The officers enjoyed the stay of the little visitors, feeding them and permitting them to wear police caps and blow police whistles to their hearts' content.

Honeymoon Visitor to Boston Loses Marriage License

Charles A. Phillips of Colchester, N. S., who came to Boston with his bride on a honeymoon trip and to see the tercentenary celebration, has reported the theft of a leather bag from his auto, which was Parker in Franklin Park today.

Phillips does not mind the theft of the bag, but it contains his recently acquired marriage license and also valuable papers which he will need to return to Canada. He is now visiting Howard Harris at 405 Parker st., Newton Center.

R. R. PACT WITH QUINCY URGED

Mayor Thomas J. McGrath of Quincy before the State Public Utilities Board today sought approval of an agreement between Quincy and the New York and Hartford Railroad for [illegible] of a grade crossing at School and Granite st. to eliminate the Water st. crossing.

The plan was explained by Marcean Jenckes, counsel for the railroad. He said the cost would be approximately 50 per cent to the railroad, 10 per cent to the city, and 40 per cent to the Commonwealth.

Chairman Henry C. Attwill said the public works department should first determine whether the state should spend money on the project. The hearing was continued until next Wednesday.

State Police Station to Be Fete Exhibit

A fully manned and equipped state police station will be one of the features of the Tercentenary exhibit of governmental activities at Commonwealth armory, beginning next Monday, Commissioner Alfred F. Foote of the state department of public safety said today in explaining the duties of his department in a radio address through Stations WEEI and WNAC.

500 GUARDSMEN ARRIVE SUNDAY

Five hundred delegates from 42 States and territories will arrive here Sunday for the opening of the annual convention of the National Guard Association of the United States September 29, 30 and October 1.

Maj.-Gen. Alfred E. Foote, president of the association, will call the convention to order at Faneuil Hall at 10:30 a. m. Monday. Invocation will be offered by Rev. Michael J. O'Connor, chaplain of the 26th Division. Brig Gen. Ellard A. Walsh of Minnesota will respond.

The convention will be addressed by Governor Frank G. Allen and Mayor James M. Curley.

On Monday evening a public exhibition by the 101st Field Artillery, 110th Cavalry, 211th Coast Artillery Anti-Aircraft and the First Corps Cadets will be given at Commonwealth Armory.

Officers for the coming year will be elected and the site of the 1931 convention chosen on Wednesday afternoon.

In a plane piloted by Lieut. Frank Crowley, James Proctor, broker, of Swampscott left the Boston airport early today for Toronto, Can., where his wife is seriously ill.

HELD UP FOR MANY HOURS AT MINOT'S LIGHT

Engine Fails, and They Are Forced to Paddle Against the Wind While Search Is Made

The three Revere men, for whom Coast Guards and harbor craft were searching since dawn after they had been reported missing since 2 p. m. yesterday in an outboard motorboat, returned safely to their homes about noon today.

The trio are: Sidney Battersby, 27, and his brother, Harry Battersby, 25, of 538 Beach st., Revere, and Benjamin Cobb, 18, of 9 Bond st., Chelsea.

They said they lost [illegible] night at Minot's Light, which they reached after paddling their boat almost a mile against a heavy wind when the engine went dead.

Awarded to their story they left Revere for Nantasket and continued from there to Plymouth. They started back and about five miles out a strong breeze caused the boat to [illegible] water, and this stalled the engine. They paddled against the wind to Minot's Light about a mile away and spent the night.

They left for Nantasket this morning and from there phoned their families of their safety. Then they returned home.

Police and coast guardsmen had made an extensive search for them.

CAPTAIN AND CREW RESCUED AS EXPLOSION SINKS VESSEL

GLOUCESTER FISHERMEN UNHURT

Spark Ignites Gasoline as Engineer Starts Motor; Craft Burns

Gloucester, Sept. 25—With their boat burned and sunk following an explosion, Capt. Gerone Fronterio of the mackerel seiner Doreas, and his crew were brought back today to Gloucester by the schooner Josephine and Margaret.

The seiner came to disaster while anchored off Round Shoal, and in the blowup, Frank Fronterio, engineer of the craft and brother of the Captain, narrowly escaped injury.

According to Capt. Fronterio, he and his men had just finished setting nets and were on their way back to the schooner when the explosion occurred.

Frank Fronterio had gone back a short time previously in a dory to start the engine of the auxiliary schooner to move it to a new location.

As the engineer was attaching the battery clips a spark flashed, he said, igniting naphtha and gasoline.

He leaped from the motor and rushed on deck just as the explosion came. Thick clouds of black smoke rolled up from the hatchway and flames shot high into the air, igniting the furled canvas.

While Capt. Fronterio and his remaining seven men pulled frantically for the seiner to give Frank Fronterio aid, the engineer slid down into his dory and row d away from the burning vessel.

So intense was the heat the fishermen were forced to row away again and watch the schooner burn.

As the schoonerless fishermen watched their craft blazing and then suddenly slip beneath the surface, the fishing schooner Nova Julia arrived and offered assistance. This was refused, however, by Capt. Fronterio because the Nova Julia had just come out to the fishing grounds.

The schooner Aiolo and Vence then arrived and assistance was refused for the same reason.

Then the schooner Josephine and Margaret, homeward bound, picked up the fishermen.

The Doreas, formerly a yacht, was of 28 tons and was built at Essex in 1901. She was valued at $10,000.

Democracy Dormitories Inspected at Harvard; President Lowell Delightful Host

Public Gets First View of New Harvard Dormitories

By BERT FORD

The public was given its first glimpse of the new cross-section student home life at Harvard yesterday when President A. Lawrence Lowell entertained members of the Boston and New York press and personally drew aside the curtain.

Writers and photographers were invited to inspect Dunster and Lowell Houses, the first two units in a group of seven to be completed for the housing of upperclass men.

More than 500 students are now living in these two beautiful dormitories where snobbery is to be banished and where the aim is to mix students from all walks of life in order that they may benefit by contact and learn of mutual trials and aspirations.

"Prexy" Lowell, who has made it a rule to shun newspaper interviews, met newspaper men for the first time in 21 years yesterday and seemed to have a jolly time of it for an hour while acting as host and guide.

The newspaper guests found him affable, witty, keen and sympathetic for the needs of the student body, and a leader in the drive to wipe out college cliques and college caste. The new plan spells the doom of the famous "Gold Coast."

Dunster and Lowell Houses are rectangular buildings of brick with colonial trimmings and peaceful court yards.

A SERIES OF "BIG HOMES" where all types of men, students at the Harvard University, will hobnob with each other, is part of great plan that brings to use the great Lowell House, one of the new dormitories. This building is so named as an honor to President A. Lawrence Lowell. The beautiful cupola is lighted at night. Approximately 500 students occupy quarters in the two completed units.

THE COMMON ROOM at Lowell House. The intent of this room is a place where all students living in the dormitory can spend a few hours together in the evening. No more cliques is the thought. (Staff photo.)

GETS 60 DAYS TO LAUGH IT OFF

He who laughs first gets 60 days in the jug.

Vincent Kievens of Hartford, Conn., was driving too fast in Western ave., Lynn, early today. Patrolman Arthur McDonald stepped off th ecurb, raised his hand to stop him. Kievens slowed his car down, leaned out the window and shouted.

Patrolman McDonald, much offended, notified headquarters and the registration of the car was broadcast. In McDonough sq., two patrolmen saw the auto approaching and stepped out to stop it. Again Kievens slowed down long enough to yell:

"Ha-ha-ha!"

More offended policemen, Lynn headquarters notified Revere that a ha-ha man was headed in that direction and Patrolman Larry Dugan, in a car, picked up the jester after a chase.

Revere was given 60 days in the house of correction for drunken driving when arraigned in Chelsea court. Lynn police are ready for him with a couple of other warrants.

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are overstimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggist.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875

3 BILLION LOSS IN AUTO ACCIDENTS AND TRAFFIC CONGESTION

EXPERTS JOIN IN HUNT FOR REMEDY

Problem of Handling Loads in Speed and Safety Is Discussed at Chamber

Street and highway traffic is the most overshadowing phase in national existence, 200 delegates to the first aviation regional conference were told at the Chamber of Commerce today.

Alfred J. Brosseau of New York, vice-president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, who presided in place of Pres. William Butterworth, absent through illness, made the statement.

"Americans people with their business and holidays will figure off this year approximately three billions of dollars in lost and waste incident to auto accidents and traffic congestion.

MEANS HEAD TAX OF $24.

"This is equivalent to a tax of $24 on every man, woman and child in the United States, too high a price to pay for indifference and carelessness."

In accepting the chair from Pres. Henry I. Harriman of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, he said:

"The occasion for the series of conferences of which this is the first, arises out of the development of two instrumentalities, transportation — automobile and airplane.

"In the past four years $8,500,000 has been spent in constructing airways and $5,000,000 is spent annually for their upkeep. More than $50,000,000 has been spent for commercial and municipal airports and landing fields. How are we going to make the most of it from the viewpoint of localities?

HOOVER STARTED WORK

"President Hoover started the national conference when secretary of commerce. That national conference pointed the way."

Pres. Harriman, in calling the meeting to order, said it was the first of several conferences through which commercial organizations in all parts of the country may get in close touch with national and sectional problems in the fields of aviation and the motor car, and work out a program for their solution.

AIR SERVICE HAS NO LIMIT.

Russell A. Sears, vice-president of the Governor's committee on street and highway safety, welcomed the delegates.

Graham B. Grosvenor, chairman of the board of the Aviation Corporation, said that with uniform laws there is no limit to aviation's future.

Col. H. H. Blee of the division of aeronautics of the U. S. Department of Commerce and Frank E. Valentyne, manager of the Maine Auto Association also spoke.

Better Transportation Is Their Aim

STREET LUNCH SET FOR OCT. 3

Because the Day of Atonement, one of the most solemn observances of the Jewish religious calendar, falls on October 2 this year, Mayor Curley today ordered that the luncheon that day at the City Club, when plans for Boston's $25,000,000 street program were to be announced, be postponed to October 3.

Many of those invited to the luncheon are of the Jewish faith and in order that representatives of every business and civic organization might be present when the street program is announced, Mayor Curley decided on the postponement.

For three years the City Planning Board has been working on the program. It is planned to spend $1,-000,000 each year for a quarter of a century on highway construction and widening.

The plan anticipates the needs of the city for the next 100 years and has the approval of Mayor Curley.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 25 (AP)—Vick Sullivan, a medical college senior here, learned hypnotism by correspondence.

Today he was credited by Thomas E. Morton, superintendent of City Home, with having revived a patient from a spell of amnesia.

A youth previously identified as "John Knowles," because he repeated the name constantly, identified himself as Ernest Aspinall, 21, of Lowell, Mass., while hypnotized, Morton said. Later when brought from under the hypnotic influence, according to Morton, he verified the identification and was able to tell his personal history.

An effort is being made by authorities to find friends of Aspinall's in Lowell.

My Midnight Marriage

In the eerie darkness of midnight, I became a legal bride.

In the circle of light cast by one flickering lantern in our farmyard stood the Rev. Miles, my lover Will Pratt, and my father grimly holding his shotgun.

To right my tarnished honor, father had brought Will at the point of a gun, catching him just as he was ready to skip the country. As he promised to love and cherish me, out on the lake a loon screamed his maniac laughter in mocking derision at my hope for happiness.

Thus I became a bride, I who, like other girls, had dreamed of a beautiful courtship, of a gently murmured question and a softly whispered answer, orange blossoms, bridesmaids and wedding bells.

* * * *

So begins "My Midnight Marriage," the epic true story, told by herself, of a young girl married to a man who, smarting under the sting of enforced marriage, devoted his life to making her life a hell on earth—who resented and hated the baby girl she bore him—who each day tried to think of new tortures of mind and body to heap upon them and who, in the end, brought upon his own head a vengeance worthy of the dreadful wrong he'd done.

It is a story that will hold you spellbound from the opening word—it will make you clench your hands and fill your eyes with tears, but finally it will make you smile, for never was a better example of the great truth that, no matter how tall a barrier Fate may raise between you and happiness, she invariably leaves a rift through which to pass if you persevere until you find it. It is published complete in True Romances for October.

Can Handsome Husbands Be Faithful?

He was called the man who was born to be spoiled by women. He was rich, divinely handsome, a talented artist, with a natural understanding of the little attentions which win women.

Read of his feverish courtship as described by his ex-wife. She tells how he lavished diamonds and pearls on her, but let his affections stray as lovely ladies were drawn to him as to a magnet. Of days on which he came home from his studio with strange perfumes clinging to his clothes.

Should she sacrifice her self-respect for the sake of their baby? Should she try to rekindle the ashes of his abandoned love? What could she do?

Read of her tremendous struggle between heart and mind. See how she finally built a fairer and finer place for herself in the world, on a foundation of lasting love with a man not half so handsome but far truer in heart.

She tells the story tenderly in October True Romances. Don't miss it. It's called "Sweethearts' Pilgrim."

He Was Strapped to His Bed When She Proposed

She was always the life of the party. But men gave her presents instead of proposing. At twenty-eight, she dreaded to take a moment from playing because she dared not leave time for thinking. Drugged by sensation, she constantly craved more excitement, more thrills. How her mania for speed resulted in the world's strangest proposal—to a man strapped motionless in his bed—is told by the girl herself in the October issue of True Romances. She calls her story "The Pet of the Crowd."

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Historic Blows

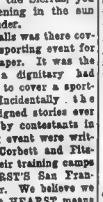
Conquered Corbett

How 'Twas Named
Other Pet Punches
"Wash" and "Link"

"HEARST" MEANT "FIRST" THEN, AS NOW

Bagdad-on-the-Subway, Sept. 25—Punches are what we're fanning about this morning, Dearie. No, not the milk punch—ah, smack! smack!—but punches of the prize ring. We can't even talk about milk punches. Don't you know we're down with Prohibition—"got" it so bad the whole bloomin' nation is broke out with it, pitted like a smallpox patient with Tell Loudiys. The punches we're fanning on are blows, not the blows that may win for Sharkey or Campolo tonight—you can read about those blows in other columns—but the punches which made ring history, or caught the public fancy. Let's see—there was Sullivan's famous "right to the jugular"; Kid McCoy's "corkscrew"; Gunboat Smith's "occipital"; Sam Langford's "Old Sal"; Frank Moran's "Mary Ann"; Benny Leonard's "block and sock," and—ah, here's the one to start off on—Bob Fitzsimmons' "solar-plexus."

You've all heard about the famous solar plexus punch. Some of you know how it is delivered. How many of you know just how the punch got its name? It was a HEARST man and a HEARST paper that first told the world about the solar plexus punch. HEARST means FIRST in those days, just as it does now.



George Underwood

Well, here we are, on St. Patrick's Day, 33 years ago, in the pine-planked arena in Carson City, Nevada, sitting alongside of a flock of notables, including among others the venerable U. S. Senator John J. Ingalls of Kansas, with hair as silvery white as the snow-covered peaks of the Sierras, you can see glistening in the sun 'way over yonder.

Senator Ingalls was there covering the big sporting event for a HEARST paper. It was the FIRST time a dignitary had been assigned to cover a sporting event. Incidentally, the FIRST time signed stories ever were written by contestants in a big sporting event were written daily by Corbett and Fitzsimmons in their training camps for MR. HEARST'S San Francisco Examiner. We believe we mentioned that HEARST means FIRST.

Back to Dan Stuart's crude board arena at Carson City, Nevada, March 17, 1897. It is the 14th round. Corbett feints with his head and draws a right hand punch from Fitzsimmons. Gentleman Jim steps back and Fitz fans the air. Again Jim draws a right hand lead from Fitz and makes him miss. Corbett tries it still a third time, planning this time to step in with a punch himself instead of stepping back and simply making Bob miss.

But the clumsy looking spindleshanked Fitzsimmons, while not as clever and skilful as Corbett, was much more crafty and cunning. The crafty fighter outthought and outmaneuvered the wonderfully clever boxer.

HERE IT COMES

Just as in the other two times Fitz apparently "fell" for Corbett's feint and started a right-hand punch for the jaw.

But Fitz pulled that right, shifted on those spindleshanks and—buried his left mauile freckled wrist deep in Jim's midsection!

The blow landed squarely in the pit of the stomach, knocking the wind out of Corbett and paralyzing him physically, although leaving him mentally conscious and alert. Referee George Siler counted Corbett out and Fitzsimmons in to the world's heavyweight championship.

The left-hand punch to the pit of the stomach had been used by Fitzsimmons and other fighters many times before. There was nothing "new" about the blow, simply a punch to the "wind" or the pit of the stomach. Telegraph instruments, there at the ringside, clicking off stories to thousands of papers throughout the world, all carried reports saying Corbett had been knocked out with a left to the wind or a left to the pit of the stomach. But wait—the solar plexus punch was aborning.

That night the California crowd, sad and disheartened by the defeat of the great Corbett, but still loyal to Gentleman Jim, embarked on the HEARST SPECIAL for San Francisco. That was another HEARST FIRST, the first time a newspaper ever had chartered a special train to carry its correspondents and friends to and from the battleground.

Billy Naughton, noted boxing writer of the San Francisco Examiner, sat on the train, typewriter on his lap, "knocking out" his story. Across the aisle a group was fanning on the fight. One of them was a well-known California doctor. As Naughton paused to think he overheard a chance remark by the doctor, giving the medical term of the region in which Fitzsimmon's punch had landed. Naughton leaned across the aisle and tapped the doctor on the shoulder:

"Say Doc," he queried. "Where did you say Fitz's punch landed?"

"In the solar-plexus region, Billy," was the answer.

"Tell us something about it, Doc," pleaded Naughton.

The doctor launched into a description of the solar-plexus, told how it was a nerve center and described the temporary paralysis caused by the shock of a blow landing in that region.

"Thanks, Doc," said Naughton. "Thanks very much."

Billy went back to his typewriter, pulled out his sheet of copy, tore it up, inserted a clean sheet and launched forth on a new lead. At the next station Naughton delivered his copy to a messenger to take to the telegraph office to be relayed to the San Francisco Examiner.

The next day Californians picked up the papers to read that Corbett had been knocked out by a new-fangled fistic contraption known as the solar-plexus punch. With the new punch—the solar-plexus—Fitz had won the title from Corbett. Other papers through out the country picked it up and news of the new solar-plexus punch spread throughout the world.

It was an old, old punch, with a new name—that was all.

There is nothing new under the sun, some philosopher or homely wit once remarked. He was right.

OTHER PET PUNCHES

Of the other famous punches, Georges Carpentier's "One-Two" was a beauteous thing to watch. Carpenter learned it from Willie Lewis, on one of the American fighter's early fistic invasions of France. Lewis was even more effective with it than Carpentier, but not as flashy. The picture of the handsome Carpentier, poised on his toes, darting out his left as a ranse finder and jaw tilter and following with that lightning, stabbing right, is worthy of the brush of an old master.

Gagnon and Friedman Top Argonne Card at Arena

Jack Gagnon of Brighton and Al Friedman of Roslindale mingle in the feature bout at the opening of the indoor season of the Argonne A. A. at the Boston Arena, tonight.

The warriors are expected to tip the beams at about the same weight when they step on the scales today for the pre-bout examination. Neither seems to have an advantage on the other and it shapes up as an even affair.

In the semifinal bout, Mack House, 200-pound Californian, will make his debut on this coast against George Gemis, a big boy from Philadelphia. Four six-round preliminaries are scheduled for the supporting card.

The Argonne A. A. has arranged for a special wire from ringside of the Sharkey-Campolo muss in the Yankee Stadium. The big bout in New York is due to start about 10:15 and the fans at the Arena will be immediately informed of the progress of the Chestnut Hill squire's showing against the gawky gaucho.

Eddie Mack, matchmaker and boss of the Argonne A. A., has decided to put the "no smoking" law into effect with tonight's bouts.

In other cities, New York, Detroit, and Chicago, the customers have been forbidden to smoke and an improvement in the fighting has been noticed.

McCarthy's sudden resignation today means that Hornsby will pilot the team during the four-game series with Cincinnati and also against the White Sox in the city series.

After the conference McCarthy and Veeck posed for photographers in amiable attitude and it was then vigorously denied there was bad blood between McCarthy and Hornsby.

VEECK EXPLAINS IT.

Veeck issued the following statement which McCarthy said "covered the subject."

"In view of the fact that he was not to be tendered a contract for 1931, Mr. McCarthy made the request that he be relieved of any further duty in connection with the club.

"In spite of the fact that the club announced he would remain as manager until the conclusion of the National League season and that he would lead the club during any post season series that might be played, the view of Mr. McCarthy was accepted.

"Mr. McCarthy further stated his willingness to remain with the club if so desired. The decision to place Mr. Hornsby in immediate control of the club was then arrived at."

Underwood's Story of Fight to Be Broadcast by WLEX

The Boston Evening American will broadcast a round-by-round description of the Jack Sharkey-Vittorio Campolo 15-round bout at the Madison Square Garden, tonight, through Station WLEX, Lexington, starting at 9:45.

George Underwood, sporting editor of the Boston Evening American, and a writer who knows his sports, will wire his story from ringside to WLEX, from which point it will be relayed to the public.

Sharkey's many admirers throughout Greater Boston are keenly interested in how the slugging squire of Chestnut Hill will fare when he faces the gawky gaucho of the Argentine in what actually is a "comeback" bout for Sharkey.

The Boston Evening American is offering its WLEX broadcast by one of the most erudite of all the boxing scribblers, George Underwood, who'll tell you the story thoroughly, interestingly and correctly.

Conway Picks Sharkey to Win Tonight by Knockout

By JACK CONWAY

New York, Sept. 25—They have Jack Sharkey's back pressed against the well known wall, which is one of the chief reasons why I believe the American heavyweight champion will defeat Vittorio Campolo in their 15-round bout at the Yankee Stadium tonight. I look for Sharkey to decide the battle with a knockout.

Put Sharkey well out in front of the entire field and have the world telling him he is unbeatable and he may lose. That's what happened when he fought Jack Dempsey and Max Schmeling.

It is a different story when the boxing world is fearing the old tom toms and crying for the defeat of the Boston heavyweight. That kind of treatment gets under his skin and causes him to fight like a cornered tiger. And they say tigers are rather dangerous when cornered. You can get additional information on tigers from Congressman George Holden Tinkham, who is the best hunter in Congress.

"I know I have to lick Campolo," Sharkey told me, "I'm in a tight spot, and I'm going to fight as well out of it."

I was greatly impressed by Sharkey's work in training when I came to New York the latter part of last week. He had just got over a gastro-intestinal attack, which in every day English, means a slight stomach disturbance.

Stories were then circulated that Sharkey was not in good condition, and that he was going to get licked. These stories had the same effect on Sharkey that a whip has on a thoroughbred as he enters the stretch. He speeded up in his training and vowed to show the world he was every bit as good as he was in the first three rounds of his bout with Schmeling.

Sharkey is also bitter against Madison Square Garden as he believes they wanted to call off the Campolo bout. He would like nothing better than to knock Campolo, who is controlled by the Garden, into the lap of one of the Garden directors.

An enraged Sharkey is a first class fighter. He will be much more dangerous for Campolo than if he had entered the ring looking upon the Jobber as just another fight.

Sharkey said he would knock out Maloney and Loughran. His dislike at the time for these opponents prompted his statements that he would knock them out. Sharkey is always a much better fighter when in one of his moods of hate. He now hates the Garden, Campolo and the latter's handlers.

All this pleases Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager. I have known Buckley to plot for hours to get Sharkey into a temper so that he would wish to crush his opponent.

Squire Has Edge in Experience

Sharkey will enter the ring with experience on his side. He has faced the best fighters in the world during the past four years. Gene Tunney is the only outstanding heavyweight he has not got a crack at and that was through no fault of Sharkey's.

I believe Campolo's chances of winning depend on what he is able to do in the first four rounds. The South American is a terrific right hand puncher. He drives this blow effectively to the head or body.

Campolo is certain to be dangerous while he has his full strength. Sharkey cannot afford to permit his chin to linger in the path of Campolo's driving right hand attack.

Campolo's handlers believe he will stand a fast pace better than Sharkey. They argue that Jack tires after five rounds. They insist Sharkey must do his destruction in the early rounds or he is lost.

I feel, though, that an experienced boxer like Sharkey should act better if tired than one of Campolo's limited experience in big bouts.

Jones Drives 360 Yards to Start

Bob Jones got off a good drive at the first hole, 360 yards, straight down the fairway, considerably better than Coleman's tee shot which caught the trap to the left.

Coleman's second was a fine shot, 40 feet from the pin on the green, while Bob was 20 feet away to the right of the flag. Coleman's putt was five feet short while Jones' was not more than three feet, but after Fay missed his putt Jones promptly threw away the opportunity of becoming 1 up by failing to get his 4. They halved in 5.

The second hole was also halved in 5s, but Jones took the lead at the third with a par 4, just missing the putt for a birdie.

Both Jones and Coleman went a stroke over par at the long fourth, 595 yards. There Bob had a great drive, 280 yards down the middle of the fairway, but Bob topped his brassie second, and the ball rolled into the rough on the right of the fairway, and he was still 45 feet short in 3. Jones missed his approach and the ball landed squarely in the trap back of the green.

Fay's putt was too strongly hit and the ball rolled past the pin by six feet. Jones came out of the trap five feet from the cup and missed the putt for a win by inches and they halved in 6. Jones was still 1 up at the fourth hole.

Jones shot a birdie to win the fifth and become two up on Coleman.

Jones continued to outdrive his opponent at the sixth by a few yards. Both being somewhere between 240 and 250 yards out. Coleman got inside with his second shot and was about 70 feet from the cup. Jones was 35 feet to the right. He then treated himself to three putts while Coleman was taking two and won the hole, 5—4.

Again Jones was in front from the tee at the seventh and Coleman, playing his second, was 15 feet from the pin. Jones was 25 feet away, but missed his birdie by a foot. Coleman got his 4 in within two feet but blew his second putt and took a five to Jones' four, going two down again.

Coleman's Ball Covered With Mud

Coleman's drive was shorter than Jones' at the eighth and turned up covered with mud. He barely missed the pin with his second, stopping four feet away. Jones popped in seven feet beyond the pin and stuck, leaving his ball encrusted with mud. Coleman then laid Jones a stymie when his ball stopped on the cup lip, but the Atlantan rolled up alongside and then tapped his opponent's ball away for a pair of 6's.

Coleman won the short ninth with a par three. Jones taking a four and they went into the turn with Jones one up.

Tenth Hole Is Halved

They halved the 10th, leaving the Atlantan still 1 up.

Jones' tee shot was down the middle and well into the turn of the dog-leg. Coleman, trying too hard for a hook to take into the curve, got into the rough at the left, but he drew a round of barrahs when he put his second shot 25 feet from the pin. Jones was

Cardinals' Infield Rated Better Than That of A's

MACKS HAVE ADVANTAGE IN SUBS

(This is the first of a series of comparisons of the Philadelphia Athletics, American League pennant winners, and the St. Louis Cardinals, probable National League champions, written by Joe Cashman, baseball expert of the Boston Evening American. Others will follow daily until the rivals have been compared in every department.)

By JOE CASHMAN

In comparing the Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Cardinals we will start in the infield for that is where ball clubs win or lose the majority of their games.

Great stress is always laid upon the value of pitching, catching and batting by managers and experts but the most important diamond department of all is the first line of defense—especially that part of it which guards second base.

Joe Cashman

Infield strength and nothing else means a fair ball club; in field weakness and strength in all other departments usually means a second division outfit.

There have been far greater infields than those representing the Athletics and Cardinals this season but both these latter quartets are better than the average. If they weren't the two clubs in question wouldn't be on the top.

At first base for the Macks is Jimmy Foxx, still a boy in years but a veteran as far as big league experience is concerned.

Foxx and Bottomley Are Rated High

The Cards' initial sacker is Jim Bottomley, a veteran of two World Series, who is somewhat along in years but still very young in spirit. Baseball is serious business with Foxx. It's more or less in fun with Bottomley. Both are rated among the best first sackers in the business. Foxx has been the better hitter this season. His average right now is .353 while Bottomley's is an even .300. Both are long-distance hitters and either may break up a game with a one-swing any time he steps up to the platter.

Bottomley is by far the better fielder. Foxx can take care of himself pretty well around the bag but his Cardinal rival is a defense marvel.

Everything considered, the teams are pretty evenly matched at first. If there is any advantage, the Cards have it because of Bottomley's temperament.

In World Series, players are very apt to tighten up and play far below their usual form. Bottomley will not. Foxx may.

At second base are Max Bishop for the A's and Frankie Frisch for the Cardinals. The odds are all in favor of the National League entry at this important keystone post.

Frisch, one of the best second sackers ever, hits almost 100 points higher than Bishop and is superior in every respect as a fielder although Bishop is a first class defensive player.

Frisch Is One of Game's Most Versatile Players

Frisch is a great money player, has engaged in several World's Series, hits close to .340 back both right and left-handed, covers acres of ground in the field and is one of the best baserunners in the game.

Bishop hits below .250 but he's much stronger offensively than those figures indicate for he is a master at getting bases on balls and reaches as often as the average .300 sticker. And he's steady, if not brilliant in the field.

The A's aren't weak at second, by any means, but the Cards are exceptionally strong and have a decided edge.

At short and at third, both clubs have good, but not outstanding players.

Gelbert, Cardinal shortstop, hits 30 points better than Joe Boley of the A's and he fields just as well, if not a little better, but he lacks the Mackmen's experience, and experience is often important in the tight spots that occur frequently in money series.

There is little to choose between the pair, in our estimation.

The same is true of third base, where Jimmy Dykes performs for the Athletics and "Sparky" Adams for the Cards.

Dykes hits about .300. So does Adams. Both are plenty game and unlikely to crack either at bat or afield. Neither, however, is likely to perform any defensive miracles.

The A's have two infield substitutes, McNair and Williams. The Cards have only one, Andy High. As promising as the Mackian youngsters appear at times, High, a courageous little veteran, should prove of more value in the series than the Quaker pair.

That's the story in the infield, and for us, at least, it shows that the Cards are slightly superior in this all-important department.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

GETTING READY FOR WORLD SERIES GOLD AND GLORY

INFIELD GEM of the St. Louis Cardinals is a Giant discard, slated for a quick drop to the bushes, Frankie Frisch. Frisch has been playing the best game of his career for the Cards, fielding sensationally around second base and hitting hard.

"SUNNY JIM" has a right to his merriment. Bottomley's lusty clouting against Brooklyn in that crucial series a short while ago just about settled the National League flag. The Cards still have to cinch the gonfalon but the experts have conceded them the victory with the possible exception of a miracle. Bottomley is the Cards' first baseman and is one of the best in baseball today.

Campolo-Sharkey Ring War Promises to Be a Thriller

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

New York, Sept. 25—To properly express what is likely to happen when our Squire Sharkey of Chestnut Hill and Senor Vittorio Campolo, the towering Argentinian, cross gloves in Yankee Stadium, here tonight—that is if the weatherman permits it, for Broadway is overhung with clouds this morning and the threatening skies hint of rain, it is imperative to lead in a brace of dogs.

The aforementioned canines belonged to the late Richard Croker, long Tammany boss of New York. They were two thoroughbred English bulldogs. Croker was exhibiting them at the Westminster Kennel Club show in old Madison Square Garden.

Occupying a bench near the door the two bowlegged, undershot, heavy barrelled brutes attracted the attention of Kid Broad, the old featherweight. They were almost as handsome as himself. The Kid walked over and started to cuff one of the dogs and fondle it roughly.

"Hey there," warned an excited attendant, rushing over. "Do you want him to bite you?"

"That dog bite me" disdainfully answered the irrepressible kid, "and I will bite him back."

Up in his Orangeburg training camp the other afternoon, trainer Lou Fink was warning Campolo that he must expect anything when he answered the gong against Sharkey.

"Why that Boston feller," warned Lou, "hit Scott low and almost ruined Schmeling. He is liable to do anything. Don't be surprised Vittorio, if he kicks you."

"He knock me," grunted the giant Argentinian, "and I knock heem back."

Campolo Ready for Rough-and-Tumble Fight

The gent from Buenos Aires went further to explain that if our Mr. Sharkey hit him low, why he, Senor Vittorio Maria Campolo, with the blood of Spanish Dons, Italian Nobles and Roman Emperors and goodness knows what not flowing in his veins, would hit him lower. He went so far as to graphically describe just how low if necessary he was willing to hit our Sharkey man, by placing a huge hamlike hand on his knees.

So, friend readers, from good old Boston, isn't it natural to look for a cockle of the heart warming, knock down and dragout battle up there in the huge baseball yard Babe Ruth built this moist evening?

Our Mr. Jack Conway, noted boxing expert and fight prognosticator, has made his selection for you. He says "Sharkey will win."

Jack isn't often wrong. On strict boxing form, Sharkey, lightning fast boxer and experienced fighting man, should outpoint this tall, gangling, slow-footed, inexperienced Argentina novice.

But just as a good time takes place when good fellows get together, it has been our experience that almost anything can happen when two heavyweights get together. One wild wallop from that giant 6-foot 6¼-inch, 220-pound Argentinian and the dope would be knocked galleywest.

Mister Sharkey doesn't seem to be in any too splendid physical condition, and unless we read the signs along the trail wrongly isn't in any too good a frame of mind. So as we look at it almost anything can happen in the ring tonight.

Semifinals in Miniature Golf Tourney Next Week

Seasoned golfers are beginning to take a keen interest in the Boston Evening American miniature golf championship tournament, in preparation for the semifinals to be played on the indoor-outdoor miniature courses which will be a featured novelty at the Radio Show next week in the Boston Garden.

Many golfers are beginning to realize that some skill is required in approach and pitch shots, as well as the putting, and consequently new interest has developed, with many new entries.

But seasoned golf players have been surprised, in matches on the different courses, when playing opposite a beginner in miniature golf. Many of the holes are tricky and mystarious, which gives beginners and old-timers at the game, a fair chance.

Two prizes each for men and women, with lowest scores for the week, are to be awarded again this week-end by the course managers at each of the 18 selected courses in the Boston Evening American tourney.

Prize winners for last week at the Mystic Miniature Golf Course, Somerville, were Mrs. Gertrude Larkin, Wilmington, 50; Mrs. Leonard Court, 576 Riverside ave., Medford, 51, with Clifford Skerry, Somerville, and James Hughes, Somerville, winning first and second prizes, respectively, for the men.

Sharkey Predicts K. O. Win Inside of Ten Rounds

By JACK SHARKEY

New York, Sept. 25—I believe I shall knock out Victorio Campolo inside of 10 rounds when we clash in our 15-round bout at the Yankee Stadium tonight.

It is my belief that my superior experience and knowledge of the fine points of the ring game will generous while he has a good left and put him in a position where I will be able to score with a knockout.

It would be unwise of me if I were to say I would knock Campolo out in two or three rounds. Perhaps I shall do so; but no fighter can predict a quick knockout with any degree of certainty, especially when he is opposed by a first-class man.

Sharkey Will Seek Win, but Not Quick K. O.

Campolo has been boxing for several years, is big and strong and very ambitious. I would not be exercising good judgement if I were to say I was going to sweep him aside with a wild rush in the early rounds.

I'll confess I tried to knock out Jack Dempsey in a round, and almost succeeded. It is risky business to attempt such a feat as one is liable to sacrifice his own chances of victory by doing so. Even though Campolo may not know a great deal about the art of boxing he is strong and tough. He will be able to stand up under considerable battering for four or five rounds. He will also be dangerous while he has a good left strength. They tell me the Argentine giant punches pretty well with his right hand to the body and also with his right to the head.

An effort has been made to develop Campolo a left dance.

His advisers have told him that if he is able to hold me off with his long left that he will be able to punch me out with his right.

I am willing to match left-hands with Campolo or anybody else. I feel I have a natural left hand. It has also been developed to a high degree of efficiency by years of practice. No matter how much they may have drilled Campolo in a left hand attack. He is certain to go back to his natural style when hard pressed.

If I get Campolo going, I won't hold back on him as I did with Schmeling in the third round of our bout. When I rocked Max I went along at a steady pace as I didn't want to be accused of taking wild chances.

Anyhow, I am going to open the throttle wide if I sting Campolo. This will mean curtains for the South American champion.

Crimson Outlook Brighter

BACKFIELDS WORKING SMOOTHLY

By RALPH GILROY
Former All-American Halfback at Princeton

With but seven days for real football work remaining before the Crimson pries the season open with the visitors from the Green Mountain State, the Vermont eleven, Horween has speeded up his program to get his athletes in prime condition for the initial game.

By virtue of a late start in reporting for work, the Harvard players must be driven along at a lively clip if the team is to function with any degree of efficiency by the time of the first contest on October 4.

Much preliminary conditioning work has had to be dispensed with by the Crimson coaches, and as a result of early scrimmaging some injuries have begun to crop out which will retard development if the bad luck continues.

Jack Crickard, a very promising backfield candidate, has sustained a shoulder injury which has forced backfield coach Eddie Casey to pull his 190 pounder out of the action. Gildea, Ben Ticknor's understudy at the pivotal position, has been forced out of action because of a knee injury

This has obliged Horween to shift Richards back to his last year's role of reserve snapper back. The first week of practice, and because of a dearth of tackle material, Richards was installed at one of the tackle posts.

It might be stated here with a lot of truth that Richards has developed to a point where it will be hard to keep him out of a regular job somewhere along the Crimson forward wall this season.

At reserve center, Richards might be placed at a guard post where, if occasion demanded, he could be easily put in charge of snapping the ball.

Merry Battle on for Places at Tackle

There is a merry battle taking place on Soldiers Field for the right to hold down the tackle jobs. Right now Kuehn, Fason, Cunningham and Finlayson seem to be a lap ahead of the field, but it will probably not be definitely decided who the lucky candidates are until well into midseason.

The one other position in the weakest condition along the Harvard front is the wing job. Vic Harding and Ogden seem to be safe bets to hold down the extremities for a while at least.

Harding is far and away the best pass snagger on the field and Ogden has few peers in making a tackle down field under punts.

Last year Harding and Ogden made a very capable wing pair to relieve the veterans, O'Connell and Douglas. This necessitated the first named pair playing only a quarter of the game.

There is a whale of a lot of difference between playing one-fourth of a game and staying up under the merciless hammering which an end receives trying to keep an opposing tackle out of his own backfield for 60 minutes of play.

One thing is most certain, and that is the Harvard lateral pass offense won't function unless her ends are efficient at blocking a tackle. If Harding and Ogden can't keep them out, the Crimson coaches will have to develop a pair of wings that can.

Backfield Combinations Working Smoothly

The Crimson backfield combinations are coming along with sure fire proficiency. Stadium spectators will see Barry Wood in an entirely new role this fall, that of lugging the pigskin.

The Harvard coaches don't think Barry will make such a bad ball-toter. If Wood proves his worth at the running game he will have plugged up the one gap in his repertoire of a triple-threat.

The Crimson offense should be 25 per cent better with this development and the Harvard overhead gaums should pile up as a result.

Art Huguley has taken hold nicely of his new position as Wood's understudy at quarterback. Huguley is the best punter on the Harvard field, has shown so far a surprising ability at throwing passes and should be worth his weight to the Harvard cause this fall.

Schereshewsky, a big 180-pounder from Jimmie Knox's last fall's second team class, is pushing Charlie Devens hard for a halfback post.

Batchelder has been doing some nice running in the recent scrimmages. Harvard should have a world of strength at the backfield posts, and with a strong center trio, good material to make tackles and ends out of, the Crimson outlook appears rosier and rosier for a successful campaign.

Five Bay Staters on Middlebury

Middlebury, Vt., Sept. 25—Five Bay Staters will be on the first eleven to play Columbia in their home province Saturday, according to the probable lineup issued by Coach Beck. Capt. Perry, Lynn, is left tackle; Nelson, Dorchester, center; Thrasher, Fitchburg, right end; Foote, Boston, left half; and Blakespan, Peabody, right half.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

Harvard End

VIC HARDING, who was a sub end at Harvard last year, has a good chance to hold a regular wing position this year. Harding is staging a comeback after being injured, almost fatally, in the Yale game a year ago.

Jones and Homans Win; Billy McPhail Loses

10 feet below him and putted up dead. After Coleman putted up to a similar point, they conceded a 4. Coleman squared the match at the 11th with a 4 to Jones' 5.

They halved the 12th in 4's and the match still was even

Jones Takes Lead Again

Jones took the lead again at the 13th with a birdie 3. Coleman's tee shot barely reached the green, 125 yards away and Jones was 12 feet away. Coleman was up to within three feet of the pin, but failed to get it down and Jones down in his regulation two was the hole 3—4.

They halved the 14th in fours, leaving Jones still hanging on to his one up lead.

Coleman again squared the match at the 15th when Jones got a gaudy six for himself.

Jones went back to one up when he won the 16th, the dreaded waterhole, with a 4. Jones resumed the business of outdriving Coleman, getting his tee shot down the middle and some 10 yards ahead of his opponent's. Both had good seconds but Jones was inside for a change, about 10 feet short, whereas Coleman was 35 feet away. Coleman overran the pin by three feet and Jones dropped his 12-incher nonchalantly for the win, 4—5.

Jones Goes to Two Up

Jones made it two up at the 17th when he got a 3 to Coleman's 4.

The cards:

Jones	5	3	3	6	3	5	5	4	4	—38
Coleman	5	5	4	6	4	4	5	6	3	—40
Jones In	454	346	434							—37—78
Coleman In	444	444	544							—37—78

Jones 2 up.

Jones became three up when he won the first hole of the second round with a four to Coleman's five.

Coleman hooked his tee shot into the trap at the left of the bent fairway, and Jones was down the middle. Coleman was on the fairway with his second, but Jones was home and got down in two putts. Coleman needed both putts after he reached th egreen, and thus lost the hole.

Coleman's third shot was well up to the pin, and he might have got a half had Jones' first putt not left him a half stymie which he couldn't negotiate.

Jones Goes Back to 2 Up

Jones dropped a hole on the second when he took a six, one over par to the coast man's five.

Both drives were down the middle and Jones, as usual, was a little ahead. Coleman got his second shot into the rough on the left, about 100 yards from the pin. Jones stayed in the fairway and was about even in distance with Coleman. Jones' third was 12 feet past the pin and Coleman's about 15 feet short.

Jones rolled up about a foot short and then Coleman laid him a perfect stymie which Bob failed to get over with his niblick, taking a six while Coleman was getting his five. They halved the third, or 21st, in threes, and Jones remained 2 up.

Coleman was on teh lower apron of the green with his spoon shot from the tee and Jones, using an iron, hit into the turf hole high and 20 feet to the right of the pin. Coleman ran up to within four feet of the pin and Jones was two feet away. Both got putts down, Jones went back to 3 up at the 22nd, when he was down in 5 to Coleman's 6

Jones continued to outdrive Coleman, but both were in the middle of the fairway. Their second could have been covered with a six and seven eighs hat. Coleman then missed his approach, the ball bumping along about 15 yards. Jones was on about thirty feet from the pin.

Coleman got in the rough at the left of the green with his fourth, but chipped his fifth up close enough to get his putt down. Jones in the meantime, was in with his two putts for the win.

Jones began to pull away at the 23d, taking a 4 to Coleman's five and making the lead 4 up.

Jones' drive was almost 300 yards down the fairway. He then took a No. 2 iron and dropped his second shot 20 feet from the pin. Coleman's second was 10 yards short of the green and he couldn't get his run-up close enough for a sure putt.

Jones missed his birdie by the scantiest of margins, the ball barely skimming past the cup. When Coleman failed to get down in four he conceded.

Coleman Prevents Rout

Coleman prevented a rout on the 25th hole when he took advantage of Jones' momentary slip and got a par for a win. Jones' old hook from the tee popped up again and left his drive in the rough to the left. Coleman was down the middle, but was trapped with his second. Jones came out well and was 25 feet short. He then proceeded to take three putts, missing his second putt from three feet away while Coleman, getting out of the trap easily and stopping four feet from the cup, was down for a 4.

A birdie on the 350 yard 26th hole gave Jones a 5 up lead and it began to look like and old-fashioned Jones massacre. Coleman dubbed his approach and got into a trap in front of the green. He erased the green with his third and was on in four. Jones, nicely on in two, ran his putt up dead and Coleman conceded.

Jones was ten feet from the pin with his tee shot on the 370 yard 27th and Coleman got the trap to the right. Coleman was out neatly enough, but a few feet behind Jones. He failed to get down in one and took a four while Jones was getting a three for the win and a six up lead.

McPhail Starts Out With Seaver

On the program came Charlie Seaver of California and William McPhail of Boston. Seaver put his second shot out of bounds at the first hole against McPhail so that the Massachusetts golfer won the hole with a birdie 3, holing a 40-footer. Seaver got home in 2 at the long second hole to tie from McPhail and square their match, and they halved the next two in par figures. McPhail took the lead with a par 4 at the fifth, and the sixth was halved in one over par.

The 19-year-old California boy was erratic at both the seventh and ninth holes and Billy McPhail was two up as the pair completed nine holes and started the inward trek.

McPhail's Lead Cut Down

The best golf of the morning was played in the Seaver-McPhail match, for Mac went out in 37 and played the next four holes in one under par. He was 2 up at the 13th, having won the 10th and lost the 12th.

Seaver, after reducing McPhail's lead to one hole by winning the 14th halved the next three holes and at the 18th a par 4 was good enough to win.

The card of the match was:

Seaver—

THE REAL STORY BEHIND HER ARREST

POLACK ANNIE

The boys covering headquarters fell for her. Her beauty would have impressed a dramatic critic, let alone a police reporter.

BEAUTY HELD IN FOR MURDER OF KING

Arrest of Titian-Haired Queen of Chicago Underworld Makes a Sensation.

CHICAGO, Aug 27.—A Titian-haired girl who looks far more like the winner of a beauty contest than a gunsater's woman was arrested today for the murder of Kinky King, overlord of Chicago's West Side gang. She is known only as "Polack Annie" and she was the common-law wife of the Edgewater Kid, North Side gangster, who was slain by machine gunners on Sunday. King was slain Tuesday with a gold revolver which was found beside his body in his apartment.

The arrest of Annie is veiled in much mystery by the police. No charge has been placed against her, and the chief of police refuses to commit himself that she will be charged with the murder. Yet she is produced as the arrest that was promised when the investigation of the murder began. Never have the police been more obliging in the matter of photographing one of their prisoners, and Annie has been posed for a score of photographs as well as the movie newsreel men. Her pictures are all over the front pages here. At least the police have succeeded in making news.

A surprise visitor at City Hall today was Goldie Gorio, leader of the North Side gangdom and Kinky King's chief rival, in his famed limousine with appointments of solid gold. Two days ago the newspapers were asking why he was not arrested as the gold revolver looked like the mark of Gorio's revenge for the murder of his henchman, the Edgewater Kid. But today Gorio walked into the Hall all smiles. However, he left in a rage, making threats at the police in general. It was rumored that he tried to spring Polack Annie and failed.

POWER CO. DEFINITIVE

Jack Lait, who saw Polack Annie brought into headquarters, wrote about her, "A gorgeously beautiful girl she was, this daughter of the slums. No beefy, red-handed, coarse-ankled peasant transplanted from surroundings where she might have been picturesque to side streets where she could only be another cow from the stockyards runway, was she—no, not Annie." Her slender foot fit the glass slipper, but there was no fairy godmother for her. She was a gangsters woman. And Jack Lait got the true story of the furious gang warfare that seemed to centre around her. It is the best gang story you will ever read.

Real Affection Has Little to Do With Modern Petting

Better Try for a Nicer Boy Friend, Warns Beatrice Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will discuss a problem of heart and home at 6:15 p. m., over station WLEX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a reader of your column and would like your advice. I am 17 years old, blonde, with curly hair and considered good looking. I have many friends. This summer I met a fellow at the beach dancing and like him very much. Now this is my problem; he tells me he loves me, but if I would pet with him and only him he would think much more of me. Do you think he really means this or is he trying to bluff me along?

He also goes with a girl in a nearby town.

T. B.

Beatrice Fairfax.

Dear T. B.—That term "pet" is much abused and overworked. You "pet" a kitten or a small child or anyone you feel tenderly and affectionately disposed towards. Now petting as used by the boys and girls today, seems to mean most any kind of so-called "love making," and let your conscience be your guide. Tenderness and real affection have little to do with it. A kiss now and then or a curly head rested on a manly shoulder is part and parcel of summer romance and moonlight and roses and may be permitted without loss of dignity. However, be not misled by the youth who says he will love you more for permitting him and him only undue liberties. The truth is not in him, so trust him not.

Cro. - Him Off!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I would be very glad if you would help me with this problem. I am 17 and in love with a boy 19 who loves me, too. But he is very jealous. He thinks that I go out with other fellows when he doesn't see me. He is always drinking. He says it is my fault, because I go out with other fellows. I still love him and I can't forget him.

BLUE-EYES.

Dear Blue Eyes.

Why don't you be a sensible little girl and cross this boy off your list? He acted in a very silly and childish manner, pretending jealousy of you and distrust of your actions as an excuse for indulging his own weakness. I'm glad you don't love him anymore, and for your own good I advise you to stop thinking about him and meet some nice boys.

Boys Should Behave

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 18. I am not considered good looking, but I am told I dress well. I love to go out and have a good time, but when I go with fellows and they try to get wise, I get angry. I have given up quite a few fellows on that account.

MIDGE.

Dear Midge—Of course you shouldn't allow the boys to do or say things that are objectionable to you. It may be that you have acquired ideas of behavior that are a little higher than the boys and girls you know are used to, and in that case you will have to wait until you can meet the kind you love or adapt yourself to the people around you.

In Love With Brothers

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I think I am in love with two men at the same time. They are brothers and my going out with both of them has made a good deal of bad feeling between them. The older is 24 and he has a very good position. The younger is only 20, he plays the violin in an orchestra, but there is something lovable about him.

MAUDE.

I don't believe you care very deeply for either of these two brothers; my dear Maude, or you would stop playing such a dangerous and selfish game. A good many tragedies have resulted from just such behavior as yours.

What's in Fashion?

Blouses of Many Uses

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—Found! A use for that skirt you've had hanging useless in the closet because it didn't quite fit around the hips. And for that dress with the perfectly good skirt section but worn-out elbows!

You simply get yourself one of the new tunic blouses. It covers up hip-line deficiencies in skirts. It covers up the waistline where you cut off the skirt from the dress.

And with either one, it makes a [illegible] dress for you. Provided, of course, that the blouse and skirt harmonize in color, texture and degree of formality.

We'd never suggest a metal cloth tunic to be worn with a jersey skirt, of course. Nor a jersey tunic with a velvet skirt. But a metal or silk tunic with a velvet skirt . . . and a light wool or jersey tunic with your wool skirt . . . do the trick perfectly.

Blouses . . . tunic or otherwise . . . are in fashion this fall. And for more costumes than the obvious suits and ensembles.

There's the new jumper dress, for instance, that needs a blouse. Or two or three for variety.

With Jumper Dresses

There's the bolero dress that needs a blouse under its loose, rounded-up front [illegible]

And there are very different types of blouses in fashion . . . enough different types so everybody can be as individual as she pleases.

The shirtwaist theme is still going strong. The kind of blouse with the tailored collars, button closings, pockets and yokes that make you think of the old-time shirtwaist.

Formal Blouses

Then more formal blouses. The kind you wear with your fall tweed or broadcloth suits and ensembles.

They're softer in line. More detailed, too. And just as much in fashion whether they're tuck-ins or short over-blouses.

The one sketched at the right below is a good example of a semi-formal suit blouse. Notice the bib-like jabot that gives it the "built-up" look . . . the same look you find in the bodices of many fashionable dresses.

And there's the tunic blouse above that's going to make a new dress for you. We think this longer blouse one of the most becoming and practical. But you'll also find shorter ones in blouses . . . some so short they come only to the hipline . . . others about halfway to the knees. Whichever you find most becoming is the most fashionable for you.

Points for Girls Who Travel

By MRS. C. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

1—If two girls are going alone to a strange city, should they wire ahead for hotel reservations?

2—Whom should the wire be addressed to, the manager or desk clerk?

3—should both girls sign the register, or could one girl sign both names?

4—Should both girls tip the waiter and bellboy?

SYLVIA.

1 -Yes, this is the safest way since then they will be reasonably sure of their reservations.

2—The manager, or simply to the hotel

3—It is best for each girl to sign her own name, and, if she is unmarried, remember that she should also use "Miss" before her name on the register

4—This depends on their arrangement. Usually alternate, if they wish.

5—This depends on so' many things. First, no matter what rules and regulations are laid down, it depends on the service and on what the size of our tip is. Then it should depend on the general type of hotel in which we are stopping; naturally some are of the more expensive classification, and, of course, in them we would be expected to give more generous fees than, say, in a small hotel. In case of service you are given, and on the amount of service.

Sunday Morning Breakfast Party

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Can you suggest something in the way of entertainment that hasn't been done over and over again? I am a newcomer in a very attractive small city where my husband has recently been appointed to a most important executive position. I have been very hospitably entertained by everybody, but exactly the same sort of thing has been done for me. I want to return the courtesy of the members of the board and their wives, but I want to give something that no one has attempted before. I am sure that you can help me. AMBITIONS.

How about serving a real breakfast? On Sunday morning about 11 o'clock. This is a delightful meal and one well understood abroad. Sunday is a day of rest and recreation. It is true that our guests would miss the morning church service, but they shall all be free to follow their inclinations, whether it be golf, tennis or early afternoon. Have flowers in the middle of a bare table. Have attractive china and silver, with a great bowl of fresh fruit in the center. Have oranges or grapefruit carefully peeled and separated and artistically arranged on finely crushed ice. Have broiled chicken with creamed or French fried potatoes, or broiled ham with country sausages, followed by griddle cakes and maple syrup or golden honey. Have delicious coffee made any way that will best please you, and have, with a great abundance of hot milk and heavy cream. Have corn bread or muffins or soda biscuits and buttered toast; both brown and white.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted to her.

Natural Way to Apply Rouge

Powder Should Be Put on Later

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

A GREAT MANY women who purchase only the best cosmetics and who are extremely careful to select just the right shade, as well as to study the general blending of rouge, still gain an artificial appearance. The makeup because they overlook one thing before rougin[illegible]

A little thought about our complexion and the structure of the tissues and blood vessels leads us to the knowledge that complexion is nothing more or less than the minute network filled with red blood under the skin showing through it. If the skin is fine and transparent we have a clear, rosy complexion. If the skin has become thick and coarse it has lost its transparency and so the complexion is dulled.

Josephine Huddleston

It is then the natural coloring is unable to show through that rouge is added to one's cosmetics.

Now isn't it entirely logical that if the natural red and pink of our complexion is gained by the blood showing through the skin that the most perfect way to gain this natural effect by artificial means would be to follow the same plan that nature does, and to apply rouge directly onto the skin and then powder over it?

Only by following this method can the smooth, velvety texture of naturalness be gained.

It is easy to blend the rouge or powder, and it is the wrong way to apply rouge when the color fades or liquid rouge couldn't be blended over a powder base, as those women would do who had a dry rouge have a creamy one.

But dry rouge will dry forever, some powder as far as the skin is concerned, but usually [illegible] does not form the same film of powder that follow cream.

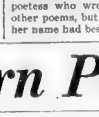
Balanced Diets Not So Hard to Achieve

By MARTHA LEE

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Homemakers' Club of More Than 37,000

"BALANCED DIETS are not really so hard to remember and understand, and you needn't be a [illegible] color of domestic science (B.D.S.) to know how to serve nutritious, well-balanced meals and still satisfy the taste and whims of each member of the family.

To balance the "dietary" means to supply in the meal each day three important foods principles: Protein, for body building and repair; fats and carbohydrates for heat and energy; mineral salts for blood, bone and teeth; vitamins for health and growth.



Martha Lee

Good authorities agree that there is probably no better food for people of all ages than macaroni, and its sister dishes, such as spaghetti, and egg noodles. They are easily digested and cook to light, fluffy and tender. The secret lies in the blending of two of the finest hard wheats in just the right proportion, and in the method of manufacture.

Spaghetti and macaroni are practically world famous, but the possibilities of using noodles in many delicious combinations are just beginning to be known. Noodle soup is an old favorite, and noodles may be used to lend variety to many of our daily dishes. So today's recipes will be all about noodles and their versatility, which will surprise you

EGG NOODLE SOUP

1 package egg noodles
2 lbs. soup meat
1 lb. bones
½ cup diced carrots
¼ cup diced onions
¼ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup okra
3 cloves
2 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper

Parboil the noodles for five minutes in 4 qts. rapidly boiling water to which has been added 1 tbsp. salt. Drain. In a scup kettle place the meat and bones with enough cold water to cover. Allow to simmer 45 minutes. Skim off the fat, add the vegetables and continue cooking for 1½ hours. Strain the soup through a colander, add the noodles and continue cooking for five minutes.

NOODLES WITH FRICASSEED CHICKEN

Boil 1 package of noodles for seven minutes. Drain, melt 1 tbsp. butter in heavy frying pan and strew with cracker crumbs or fine bread crumbs. Turn in parboiled noodles, flatten down firmly and cook like an omelette until brown on the bottom. Turn out like an omelet and serve with fricasseed chicken. The combination of noodle and chicken gravy is something you dream about but seldom taste

TINTED EGG NOODLES

4 tbsp. butter.
1 egg.
2 tbsp. milk

Parboil the noodles for 5 minutes in 4 qts boiling water to which 1 tbsp. salt has been added. Drain well. Melt butter in a frying pan, add the noodles, then pour over [illegible] beaten up with the milk. [illegible] brown.

FRANKFURTERS WITH NOODLE BORDER

[illegible] 9 to 12 minutes in [illegible] rapidly boiling water to which [illegible] salt has been added. [illegible] drain the frankfurters. Make the shortening, add the onions and the frankfurters and cook, stirring frequently, until the onions are well browned. Remove the frankfurters. Discard the browned onions and add to the shortening one tbsp. flour made into a paste with 2 tbsp. of water, the [illegible] celery salt, pepper and mustard. Cook for one minute. Pour the sauce over the noodles arranged on a hot platter. In the center place the frankfurters garnished with the parsley. Elbow macaroni may be substituted for the noodles

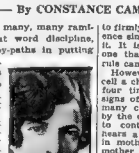
How Best to Get Obedience

Explain Your Reasons to the Child

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

THERE ARE many, many ramifications to that word discipline, and as many by-paths in putting it into effect.

Some of us dominee[illegible] too rigidly over a child, giving him no chance for thought or never an opportunity to know WHY he's doing a thing; while others of us, explain far too much in a mistaken idea that a child is right to know why he is asked to obey.



Constance Cameron

Within reason I like the method of telling a child why he has to do certain things. There is however in this way of proceeding, a grave possibility that the child, if he is at all intelligent, will turn these questions into a means of delaying obedience, rather than a desire to really know why he must "come in" "go to bed" and so on.

When a mother senses that this ruse is being tried on her, it is time to firmly, but kindly, demand obedience simply because she has asked it. It is a delicate situation and one that no theory nor blanket rule can cover.

However, many mothers have to tell a child twice, three or perhaps four times before he shows any signs of coming to her. In a good many cases this is caused either by the child's having become used to continuing his play until he hears a cross or threatening note in mother's voice, or because the mother gives two commands.

As to the first, it is easy, if you begin right, to make a quiet, kindly request just as effective as a loud, angry threat. It is only in sticking to your guns until the child fully realizes that "No" means no, even though it is spoken quietly and without anger or irritation, and lo, you have the child who apparently obeys willingly and immediately.

But for the mother who makes tentative commands there is but one cure for the subsequent condition of insubordination, and that is to make no commands positive ones. For instance, when mother says: "Come, John, I think you ought to go to bed now," John immediately senses a loophole. Mother thinks he OUGHT to, but there is just a chance that he can change her mind, if even only for 10 or 15 minutes. The quiet statement: "Come in, John," it is bedtime," doesn't suggest anything other than what it IS, namely, bedtime. And what's a fellow to do about it? Why, just go to bed, and that's that.

Let me say that the first time you try the positive method, if you've been using the tentative one for years, your particular John is going to leap up the stair and jump into bed without protest. Changing any habit takes infinite patience. But it can be done. So try to make your words mean just what you want them to mean, and don't leave loopholes wherein young people can find an opportunity to become argumentative and dawdly.

Home Hints

A LITTLE FINE sand sprinkled over the table before scrubbing is an effective labor saver, making the wood smooth and white.

To remove hot dish marks from a polished table, rub the affected parts with a mixture of turpentine and raw linseed oil. The mixture should first be heated in an old pan. A mixture of salt and salad oil is equally effective.

To clean stained jar lids, soak for two days in sour milk to cover. Wash in hot soapsuds and rinse in hot water and the lids will look like new.

Cure for the "Slipping" Husband

By HELEN ROWLAND

HOW TO "CURE" a slipping husband. That is what a young wife wants me to tell her—and what about a million wives, young and old, would give their last penny to find out.

If I knew an infallible recipe for retrieving wandering husbands, dear heart, I could sell it for enough money to keep me in diamond wristwatches and Rolls-Royces for the rest of my life.

• • •

There are just three kinds of stepping husbands.

First, those who were BORN that way. Those who were born instinctive rovers, just as some children are born with double-jointed or red hair or big ears. They would never stay at home, if their homes were Paradise and their wives archangels. They step, not for love of another woman, but just for love of a change, or love of adventure, or love of amusement, or love of conquest. Their hearts may belong to their wives, but they were born with a going-foot and a wandering fancy. Thank heaven, their kind is almost as rare as club feet or Siamese twins.

• • •

Second, there are those who leave home just because they want to GET AWAY. Because their homes have become unbearable or because they have lost their taste for their wives. Because they are bored or annoyed or nagged, and ANY place looks better to them than the old home circle. It all the speakeasies and pool-rooms were closed they would go to a graveyard for relief.

• • •

Third, there are those who step out because they are in love—or imagine themselves in love—with another woman.

And, what can you do to "CURE" any of these?

The natural-born stepper can no more be cured of his weakness than a cat can be cured of its appetite for cream. Not even old age and rheumatism can stop him from limping off after every pretty face; and only when he lies in his coffin with his eyes closed, will he fail to answer the signal in another woman's eyes.

• • •

The man who loves his home and is tired of his wife can only be kept in the house evenings by nailing him to the floor or strapping him to the armchair. And, then, his material presence is not much consolation.

There is no "cure" for wandering husbands, except time, luck, death, divorce—and PATIENCE!

Swimming Good Exercise

Be Careful That Water Is Clean

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

IN THE past decade swimming has made rapid strides as an exercise and as a recreation. It is becoming more and more popular every year and is now recognized as one of the best forms of sport and exercise.

Dr. Copeland

In olden days we gave little thought to the hygienic side of bathing. It is a far cry from the old swimming hole to the present day popular bathing beaches with a fine sands go into seaside and inland waters, or our finely equipped swim ing pools. Years ago no such throngs went into the water as are there now. Then we ev... where.

With the popular bent for swimming we have come health problems. Public bathing places, swimming pools and bathing beaches have sprung up everywhere. As they grew public health officials everywhere looked upon them as sources of danger although transmission of certain diseases. Among others, it has been thought typhoid fever, some social disease, diphtheria, ear and sinus troubles and other diseases have had public bath ing places as their source.

Up to five or six years ago the construction, equipment and operation of these public bathing places varied greatly in different States and in different localities within a State. Many pools were poorly constructed and improperly equipped There were no State control measures controlling such swimming places.

Through the co-operation of the Public Engineering Section the American Public Health Association and the Conference of State Sanitary Engineers a better state of affairs has been reached. Studies have been made along sanitary lines and in other helpful directions.

We cannot be too careful where we bathe. Dirty water is a danger- ous thing. It usually contains the germs of disease. Even though it appears clear, it may be contaminated. You must think of this when your boy or girl takes to the water just anywhere.

During the Fall and Winter months swimming may now be carried on in well-managed bathing houses and swimming pools. Under the right sanitary conditions they provide splendid exercise and recreation.

It is well to remind ourselves that a thorough physical examination should precede any amount of swimming that is of a violent nature. It is very easy to overdo unless one is in good condition. Unless one has a good reaction it is well not to stay in the water too long at a time.

Today the best swimming pools are made safe by water sites renewed and by disinfection by chlorination. Every swimming pool should have running water, and perhaps it is not too much to hope that all will be thus equipped some day in the near future.

Any sport that combines so well as does swimming, co-ordination of mind and muscle with real recreation is worth while. Under the best of conditions and taken in moderation it is a real help to well-being and good health.

A FEW DROPS of simple tincture of benzoin added to the rinsing water to be used after the soapy facial tubbing, will discourage freckles. It sets up a mild state of dermatitis, which is a fluffing away of dead skin. Lemon juice isn't to be scorned as a bleach; it has a whitening effect upon a skin that is discolored with tan and brown polka dots.

Ask Employers to Guarantee Steady Jobs

All Workers Now Afraid to Spend; Successful Plan Here Told

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Sept. 25—From every part of the country letters have come making this suggestion:

Every corporation and employer in a position to do so should announce that he will no further reduction in working forces for the next year.

Where steady work for all cannot be guaranteed, employers are urged to announce that a minimum force of a certain number will be definitely retained.

B. C. Forbes

• • •

J. T. Hergraves, well known in the financial world, writes:

"While there may be many firms who cannot afford to give their employes a six months' guarantee, there are many others who could. A column recommending this would help to spread the gospel."

• • •

E. J. Grant, oil worker, writes:

"I submit, I believe, one of the main reasons or causes for our present depression. If the employer will remove, to the extent he can, the threat of unemployment that hangs over the heads of all workers, we will see the beginning of improved conditions generally over the country.

"Let the small employer assure those workers he feels he will keep employed regardless of conditions. Those he is doubtful about, let them know how they stand and what their position will be during the lay-off.

"This system should adopt the seniority plan as in effect on railroads. There are millions of workers who are working today and who have worked under that threat who will never be laid off. Machines do not seem to be a menace to the extent of 10,000, and you throw the entire force into a state of uncertainty for future employment. They at once start to curtail spending.

"I know very much like to know just how the present depression has affected the employes of Frederick & Gamble in their spending habits. I don't believe they have changed much as they work under a guaranteed of 48 weeks' work a year.

"To sum up, millions of workers have curtailed their spending for the reason they had no assurance they would have steady work, but have worked and will continue to work."

• • •

How far it is feasible to carry out this general idea, each corporation or employer must decide. Very evident is it that there is a hungry desire among workers all over the country to be assured that they are not to be laid off.

Year today is prosperity's worst enemy. Whatever can be done to combat it, should be done.

• • •

Herbert P. Johnson, Jr., president of S. C. Johnson & Co., of Racine, Wis., has been able to keep that very large concern making floor wax, enamels, lacquers, etc.) operating steadily for eight years without a shutdown, except when because of business depression. After experiencing the ups and downs common to most companies, an unemployment insurance plan was organized, jointly with the employes, in 1922. Since then all has gone smoothly under the following policy, as outlined by Mr. Johnson:

1. Consistent advertising throughout the year to develop sales every month.

2. Continuous aggressive merchandising, including special sale plans for dealers and salesmen's contests during usually depressed months.

3. Development of new products and training of employes so that they can shift from one job to another.

4. Vacation periods for all employes during a usually depressed month.

5. A general policy of fair dealing with all employes, giving them the benefit of their loyalty and productivity, including profit sharing.

Imagine what a heaven America would be for workers if all employers had brains enough to provide steady jobs year-round!

As a start every employer can at least set this up as his goal.

• • •

One ray of sunshine: The Detroit Aircraft Corporation booked more new business in the last ten days than in any similar period in its history.

• • •

The president of one of the countries largest biscuit companies tells me:

"Our policy for the past few months has been to buy flour and sugar on a 'hand to mouth' basis.

"Our opinion is that present prices for wheat and sugar will not change much during the next few months, although there are some factors which indicate that sugar prices will stiffen a little between now and the first of the year."

One of these days it is entirely possible that we shall witness a buyers' stampede in various commodity and merchandise markets.

BOSTON STOCK SEATS ARE WELL HELD

By FRANK H. MELOON

Boston Stock Exchange seats are closely held. Declines of prices for seats on the New York Stock Exchange, the New York Curb and the Chicago Stock Exchange have not been matched locally. Secretary George A. Rich of the Boston Stock Exchange reports the last sale of a seat here was at $35,000 and expects the next sale to be not far from that figure. Only two seats are to be bought, and these are made available only by the deaths of members. The high price for a Boston seat was $45,000 last year.

George A. Rich

Although Chicago is more active than Boston in its trading in shares, a Chicago seat sold this week for $22,000, off $350 from the previous sale. This decline in prices of seats in some centers has been attributed in part to their having been bought on rather thin financing. That hasn't happened in Boston.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

The bears shuffled out with all their horrid masks this week—Bolshevist selling of wheat, unemployment at home and abroad, South American revolutions, the "Fascist menace" in Germany, and the like—and then ran to cover as the market went up.

The explanation that bears who covered remained bearish sounds unconvincing, even a bit absurd. It costs commissions to cover and then sell again. The answer remains to be supplied.

Present rate is 8 cents per 100 cubic feet, with a guarantee of $160 instead of $150 a season. Wholesale rate schedule for large users of gas is also modified.

New Gen. Motors Is Sold Privately

J. P. Morgan & Co. sold privately Wednesday 158,000 shares of the new General Motors preferred stock at 99 a share. Stock closed Wednesday at 100 on New York Stock Exchange. "UAF" Pool Loans Called Extensive calling of bank loans carried by the group sponsoring United Aircraft was responsible for the heavy selling in that issue. The "UAF pool" has enjoyed a fair measure of success in its operations until just before the present decline in the market started a short time ago.

Since then, however, United Aircraft has been a favorite target of an important group of bear operators, with the result that attempts to maintain the higher price levels have been unsuccessful. It was only natural, therefore, that banks carrying loans for the account of the "pool" should demand additional collateral, or, conversely, members of the syndicate in United Aircraft did not meet these requests.

Yellow Cab Loans Called

Banks also called loans on the pool operating in Yellow Cab, it was reported.

"Steel" Meets Heavy Selling

Heavy liquidation in United States Steel common yesterday reflected the disclosure in this column several days ago that operations of the corporations would show a tendency to decline next week. The recent increase in operations of the company is somewhat misleading, according to competent authorities in the industry, who declare that a falling off in operations is in prospect. This is attributed to the fact that operations have been stepped up a bit too fast recently and that the schedule of operations will be brought more closely in line with the present conditions in the industry.

Kennecott May Pass Dividend

Failure of improvement to develop in the copper metal market may prompt directors of Kennecott Copper to omit the dividend on the common stock entirely. The directors early in the year reduced the dividend from $6 to $3 a share and subsequently cut it to $2 annually. Since the last dividend action, conditions in the copper industry have turned from bad to worse and further reductions in the price of the red metal have occurred. The company however, is in a strong cash position, and could maintain the present dividend should the directors desire to do so. Nevertheless, it is felt that the directors will continue to conserve the assets of the company until the copper industry becomes more stabilized.

Telephone Chart Revision Noted

Announcement that the American Telephone & Telegraph chart had been devised and that the return to normalcy in business had been postponed into early in 1931 had considerable effect upon sentiment.

Anaconda Weakness Indicates Action

Decline in Anaconda Copper to a new low indicates the market has become reconciled to unfavorable dividend action, due at today's meeting of the directors. Omission of the dividend, it is thought, would remove all uncertainties, whereas in its present mood the stock market probably would be inclined to worry over continuance of any lowered rate.

American Can Rumors Unfounded

Widespread rumors that directors of American Can would hold a special meeting to declare an extra dividend apparently are based more on hopes than anything else. Officials of the company know nothing of any such plans and indicate that there will be no change in the regular payment of $1 a share quarterly at this time. Directors of the company meet for dividend action next Tuesday. Later in the year, however, when a better knowledge of this year's results are obtainable, it is probable that directors may be more liberal in their treatment of stockholders. It is reported that the regular annual dividend of $4 a share may be increased to $5 and that an extra dividend of $1 a share will be declared later in the year.

Foreign Power Meets Support

For the first time in many weeks important support was noticeable in American & Foreign Power but, like all such supporting buying, it was on a scale downward.

Montgomery Ward Dividend Outlook

In the face of continued talk that its dividend may be lowered at today's directors' meeting, Montgomery Ward did not declare one. Undoubtedly, the stock has gone down a considerable extent in discounting unfavorable action; its yield on a $2 basis would be over 5 per cent, and on a $1.50 basis yield 4.61 per cent.

Frisco Dividend Outlook in Doubt

Decline in St. Louis-San Francisco common to new low for the year, with its yield close to 10 per cent, has assisted uncertainty regarding continuation of this rate.

Support Came as Predicted

Chart students point out that the market has met support at about the levels where it was believed buying would assist those were advising clients against becoming too pessimistic as the theoretical support points were being approached, and urged them to reserve their judgment until the standard rails indicate conclusively the next move. Naturally they were encouraged by the fact that support came into the market when it did.

American Can's Earnings Good

Considerable improvement in the earnings of American Can in the last six or seven months is indicated by the statement made in quarters close to the company. Whereas it had been feared that the drouth would affect earnings adversely, can buying has increased. Stockholders of Can will likely be rewarded with an extra dividend later this year. Rumors have been heard that much action will be taken at the meeting of directors next Tuesday. Well-informed interests, however, are not looking for an extra at this time. American Can has been well bought on a scale on every reaction recently.

Vanadium Popular as Bear Target

Vanadium has become a popular bear target. The stock was attacked again Wednesday and started downward long before the wave of selling came into the general market at noon. Vanadium attracted a large following recently because of the widespread "information" that an important group had taken a long position in the issue. The latest reaction uncovered many nearby stop-loss orders, which increased the supply when the demand for the issue from the shorts was limited.

Gasoline Price Cut Not Encouraging

Comments heard in the financial district indicate that the price reduction of 2 cents a gallon made by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey is not looked upon as encouraging. It was anticipated that some adjustment would be made with the end of the active summer period approaching, but the cut was larger than looked for. Some fear has been expressed that this action might be followed by a country-wide reduction in prices. That would have an influence on the earnings of the oil companies in the coming months.

STOCKS LOWER IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices moved lower in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Changes, while limited to fractions in forenoon trading, were extended as the session progressed. American Founders broke to a new 1930 low. Boston Personal Property dipped a point.

Inland Creek dropped 1¼, Mohawk 1¼, New England Telephone 2, General Electric 1¼ and Boston Elevated preferred was a point lower. American Telephone recovered around a point from its low for the day.

Mergenthaler was a point lower, United Shoe was off nearly a point and Gillette was lowered over 3 points to a new low for the year. Brown & Co. preferred added a point. New England Equity preferred advanced 2 points, Utility Equities preferred gained 1¼ and Atchison was 2 points higher. Anaconda sold fractionally higher.

New England Power Association and subsidiaries report for August balance for reserves and common dividends of $373,026, against $454,536 for August, 1929. For the eight months the balance was $4,643,775, compared with $4,164,479 for the initial eight months of last year, while the 12 months ended August 31, 1930, showed a balance for reserves and common dividends of $7,955,281, against $6,839,164 for the previous 12 months, a gain of $1,116,117.

Merchants Manufacturing Co., Fall River, has declared another dividend of $5 per share, making total disbursement of $40 per share since the property was acquired by Jerome A. Newman for $40 per share. The Crescent Mill unit of approximately 40,000 spindles continues intact, although closed indefinitely.

Union Cotton Manufacturing Co., Fall River, has declared a dividend of $10 per share in liquidation, payable Sept. 26 to stock of record Sept. 22. Total distribution to date is $16.50 per share.

United Fruit Co. has purchased the Old Kent Farm on Hermitage st., Hingham, comprising more than one hundred acres. A wireless station is to be erected, with transmitting and receiving apparatus of both marine and shortwave lengths.

Merchants National

Merchants National Bank declared regular quarterly dividend of $4 a share, payable Oct. 15.

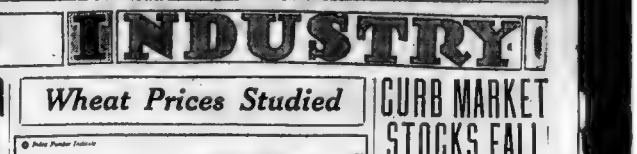
Wheat Prices Studied



Price of Wheat, No. 2 Red, at New York

By HARLOW PETERS
(Irving Fisher Service)

Despite horrendous reports of short selling moves by the Soviet Government, wheat prices in the weekly records have at least not become any worse than they were in July.

This is a moral, if not an actual victory. The comparatively level action of wheat prices since July gives some measure of confidence to buyers—that is, they can make purchases without fear that they will lose by not waiting still longer for prices to drop further.

This does not mean that prices may not go lower, but the length of the steadying period is what lends the confidence.

The farmers and sellers, however, could certainly do with an upturn. It is true that if the present price were maintained for, say, a year, some way could be found to adjust costs so that these sufferers could be brought out of their misery.

But just now they can be relieved only by a price rise of some size that can be maintained.

COTTON OFFER IS APPROVED

Fall River, Sept. 25—Stockholders of both Davis Mills and Lincoln Manufacturing Co. at special meetings voted to accept the offer of General Cotton Corp. for the purchase of their properties. In both instances the vote on acceptance was slightly less than the 85 per cent required under the written offer, but it was stated that General Cotton Corp. had reserved the right to waive this provision.

The offer included assumption of all the liabilities of both corporations, with an exchange of six shares of General Cotton for each share of Davis and 1¾ shares of the same corporation for each share of Lincoln.

Inquiry revealed that Homer Loring of United Merchants & Manufacturers, Malcolm G. Chace of Berkshire Fine Spinning Associates, Inc., and Edward Chace were the parties that conferred on the matter with directors of the two mills.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

The answer of one broker to those who claim common stocks must decline until they can be purchased on a more attractive basis is that in 1921 when common stocks could be purchased on a 5 to 6 per cent basis, he could also buy Liberty bonds at $80 and U. S. Steel preferred to yield 6½ per cent.

A prominent andastute trustee is known to be a buyer of Steel around 160. High grade bonds with a low yield do not attract him as he is doubtful of their ability to sell on the same high basis if money rates stiffen in the next six months because of any business pickup. He will be satisfied with a return of 4.30 per cent, the chance of extras via cash and rights and the positive enhancement in value offered by "Steel."

CURB MARKET STOCKS FALL TO NEW LOWS

New York, Sept. 25—Renewed bearish onslaughts, directed principally against the oils, specialties and vulnerable utilities, succeeded in depressing prices of curb stocks to new low levels for the year, in a continuation of hectic trading activity today.

Acute weakness developed in the oil group, with practically all issues in this list sinking to their lowest levels in years. Gulf slumped 4 points, Humble was off 2¼, Houston new off 1¾, Standard of Indiana off 1¼. Vacuum showed a loss of a point at 74¾.

Although the utility gist ruled generally lower, good support was encountered in the run of active favorites. Losses ranged from one to two points in such leaders as Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric, American Light & Traction, American Superpower, American & Foreign Power Warrants, Niagara, Hudson Power, Tampa Electric, United Gas and United Light & Power.

Cities Service broke to its lowest level in months, off ½ point from its previous close.

Investment Trust were severely battered, with Reliance Corporation showing the wide decline with a 4 point loss.

A 25-point collapse in Aluminium Ltd. was the outstanding feature of the downturn in the miscellaneous group.

Freight Cars in Need of Repair Gain

Class I railroads on September 1 had 153,046 freight cars in need of repairs or 6.8 per cent of the number on line, according to the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association.

This was an increase of 4471 cars above the number in need of repair on August 15, at which time there were 145,575, or 6.7 per cent.

Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

PRICE SETBACKS SCORED IN WALL ST. TRADING

New York, Sept. 25—Numerous price setbacks were scored in today's trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The selling became heaviest in the final hour, after leaders had backed and filled most of the day.

New York & Harlem was down 13, Green Cananea over 10 and Case around 11.

Losses of 5 to 7 or more points came for Peoples Gas, Vanadium, Auburn Auto, Gillette, Detroit Edison and Eastman Kodak.

At the same time, setbacks of 3 to more than 5 points were seen in Worthington Pump, Radio Corp., Allied Chemical, International Harvester, International Business Machines, Houston, General American Tank, Electric Auto-Lite and American Smelting.

STEEL SELLS OFF

American Telephone and U. S. Steel quickly recorded around 3 points in the late selling wave.

There was a spotty rally in the last 10 minutes.

Selling, however, was directed more forcefully by individual issues and a couple of well-defined groups, and the so-called pivotal shares as a rule found support on the reactions.

Pressure was particularly strong against the farm implements and the oils. More than a dozen of the latter classification broke to new lows for the year.

TRADING STRONG.

New York city traction shares were a strong feature and made some prominent advances under buying stimulated by a belief that recent developments forecast important and possibly successful efforts toward unification. Brooklyn-Manhattan guaranteed, an inactive stock, soared more than 17 points and gains of 3 to 4 in the active members of the group were general.

The gloomy rumors which have accompanied recent pressure against stocks were largely missing. Although such reports find little credence in calmer circles of the financial community, their absence was something of a relief.

Last week's slump in steel operations drew considerable comment. Some experts on the industry felt that the upward trend might not be so evident when the next reports come out, basing their contention on the ground that production might again pass requirements for finished goods, thus permitting a slackening in output.

In this connection it was pointed out that the railroads have not yet made little or no inquiry for rails notwithstanding the fact that the usual season for this demand is now at hand.

The automotive industry, another important user of steel, is likewise apathetic. One of the trade papers expressed the opinion that production of motor cars this month would probably fall below 4,000,000 units for the first time since 1927, unless an unforeseen improvement appeared.

Another publication asserted that a large volume of deferred purchases of automobiles had piled up and that manufacturers were expecting to reap the benefits of large replacement orders next year when the business uncertainty should have been allayed.

CUTS BY COPPERS.

The dividend actions by the Anaconda Copper group had been expected. Anaconda's cut to a $2.50 basis brought a rally in the shares on covering from shorts who had thought that a larger reduction was likely. Greene Cananea, in which Anaconda holds a 90 per cent interest, and Inspiration Consolidated, another member of the family, omitted their common payments entirely.

Money was almost embarrassingly abundant. Some of the brokers in the outside market quoted call loans as low as 1 per cent. Reductions of ¼ of a per cent on several time loans maturing were also reported and six months accommodations, in a few instances at least, were available as low as 2%.

Beet Sugar Run to Set a Record

Grand Island, Neb., Sept. 23—American Beet Sugar Co. officials predict a record run this year. A total of 11,500 acres will be harvested, a 15 per cent increase over last year, which surpassed all previous records. Recent rains greatly aided maturity of the crop to the point where injury from frost is remote. Beets in this section will average 10 tons to the acre, and, it is estimated, will produce 2600 sacks of sugar of 100 pounds each.

A Real Street Plan

Something May Be Done at Last

Mayor Curley and the City Planning Board actually electrify us by the announcement that at last a definite and comprehensive plan of street and highway construction has been devised for the city of Boston.

From the day of the cowpath through the Common, this city has suffered all the handicaps and extravagances of hodgepodge, piecemeal street laying-out. The city was built to its immediate needs, with a pandering to the selfishness of local groups, with no imaginative thought of its ultimate growth. To the stranger in our midst, the city has had the appearance of the boy who outgrew his short pants and whose mother sewed on an inch at a time, from year to year.

The new plan, we are told, contemplates the development of Boston for the next hundred years. There are to be radial arteries, street widenings, all with the view to expediting traffic and relieving the abominable congestion. If it were achieved in a single year, the total cost would be well worth bearing. But the development is to be progressive, with the expense apportioned somewhat to the future.

The detailed plan will no doubt provoke dissensions and rivalries. Most street constructions are a contest between competing factions. But the idea is too fruitful of great advantage to the future of Boston to be lacerated to death by bickerings.

Another Soviet Atrocity

Incredible, But True

The latest Soviet atrocity concerns clothes. The great minds of Moscow have issued the edict that women must vote on the styles they like best, and then stick to those styles.

Fashion congresses will be held this Fall throughout Russia, at which mannequins will display six or eight "revolutionary" gowns. A vote by raising of hands will be taken, and thereafter the Soviet garment trust will make no other dresses, coats, hats or shoes except the one type receiving the majority of votes.

Soviet modistes are to be guided by "comfort, hygiene, beauty, economy and proletarian idealism," in their designs.

It is an interesting experiment. If the sponsors succeed in making Russian women observe the rules, then they are super-men indeed, and the world will begin to take the Communist menace seriously.

You wonder, also, what a garment that embodies "comfort, hygiene, beauty, economy and proletarian idealism" will be like.

We used to have one in this country that met those specifications, but it has gone out of style in recent years. It was made of red flannel.

Perhaps that is what the Soviet has in mind.

Penalizing Their Widows

Selfish Men Tie Up Their Estates

A man dies and leaves his estate to his wife. But with the proviso that she shall forfeit it if she marries again.

Man's inhumanity to woman.

She marries him for better or worse, often getting the worse; sets up his home and rears his children. More often than not she steadies him in crises, when the world seems against him and everything's going to pot. He passes on and penalizes her by denying her the money they made together if she seeks the happiness which might come through another marriage.

If we pretended to be the keeper of the world's morals or the arbiter of passions, we would put it down as pure selfishness.

New England Snubbed

No Place on the Tariff Commission

If you sat in a newspaper office, you would see a great deal of sniping going on against the Hoover farm-relief program. The printed propaganda amount to a bale a day.

These snipers were singularly silent when the tariff law went through, imposing a fine of a billion dollars annually on the consumers.

Instead of confining themselves to sniping they might well go down to Washington and remind the Administration that New England, for the first time in a generation, is now without representation on the reorganized Tariff Commission. Because of her industries and diversified needs, New England should have a place. A friendly suggestion to the Administration, instead of the secret sniping, might achieve that result.

Supply and Demand

One Law That Always Works

The four best selling books in New York last month were not fiction, nor biography, nor history. They were four volumes on the gentle art of cocktail making.

These works were not widely advertised—in fact, two or three were not advertised at all. One buyer would tell his friends about them, and the friends would betake themselves to the nearest book counter and get copies. The word was passed around, and sales boomed.

When there is demand, there will be supply.

Adam Smith, learned economist, pointed that out two hundred years ago.

Prohibitionists might take Smith down from the shelves, run over the pages again, learn something.

F. OPPER

He came, took a look, turned around and went back, taking big news with him.

We wonder that other planets, Mars, for instance, millions of years older than our earth, do not speak to us and "act friendly."

Perhaps, with better telescopes than ours, they can look down and read our newspapers over our shoulders.

In that case, they would naturally say to themselves:

"That's an amusing little planet, with its private retail murders in the gutter, its wholesale murders on the field of battle. "But, considering its racketeering, bootleg whiskey, gunmen, graft, diseases, wars and general deviltry, we'll wait a few million years more before we strike up an acquaintance."

Our little Martian, above, seems to have been unfortunate. He should have gone to Newport, pretending that he was just over from London, with a title. He would have had a better reception.

Listen, World! -:- Money

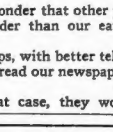
By ELSIE ROBINSON

Is Man or Woman the Most Saving?

WHICH IS the Saving Sex?

If you're a male, you'll say without a second's hesitation—"Men, of Course. Women have no sense for business. Never yet saw a woman who could manage money. Why, they're notoriously extravagant — throw away every dime a man makes on some fool dodad."

If you're a man, that's what you'll say, for that's what men have been saying since time immemorial. And there was very little the Missus could say in reply. Of course there was plenty she wanted to say. For instance . . . if Dad was such a great manager, how come he brought home only $9 out of a $15 check? Well, he had to "treat the boys."



Elsie Robinson

* * *

Treating the boys was a mysterious function which could not be gainsaid—according to Dad. Of course the Missus couldn't be expected to understand. What did women know about a man's life—he snorted contemptuously. And he snorted even more when the Missus told him how she'd manage if she had a job. A woman make money—save money? Ha, ha!

* * *

But time turned the laugh on Dad. For twenty year Ma and the girls have been holding jobs and managing their money with increasing efficiency. And, incidentally, handling masculine complacency an awful wallop! For example, there was that recent incident in Manchester, England. Manchester wanted to borrow several millions and asked its substantial citizens to subscribe for bonds. Promptly they came across.

* * *

But, to the amazement and secret chagrin of the Manchester males, half the subscribers were women—working women who had saved their pennies! And this in bonnie England, where females have had about as much financial standing as a woodtick.

* * *

Yes, gentlemen are certainly having to revise their notions. And some of them are pretty mad about it. Have you listened in on many of these modern marriages where the youngsters both work? Looking at the bride fluttering about, you'd swear she was nothing but a pink and white doll.

What a heavy load that sturdy, sensible young man, her husband, must have to carry. And the sturdy, sensible young man would agree with you!

* * *

In spite of all these modern equality theories, he's just as sure as his grandfather was before him, that he's the Heavy Ballast in the matrimonial bark. But the truth is that the sturdy, sensible young man would probably not be eating nor sleeping indoors if it were not for the thriftiness of that little pink and white doll!

* * *

Theories to the contrary, man is not the Saving Sex and woman is. She may not hang up a heavy record in the departments of science or art but when it comes to dollars and dimes the average young woman can out-chipmunk the average young man any day in the week.

Four Speeches Lack a Gallon

By ARTHUR BAER

MR. HOOVER'S TOUR of the West will be unique in that he will make only four speeches at stately intervals.

* * *

One of these speeches will be off the rear end of the train. Six intervening pullmans will prevent the engineer from listening to advice from the boys in the back seat.

* * *

There will be no reference to politics in the concert tour, retail or wholesale. Now that farmers have got that heavy loan it will be a good-will flight.

* * *

The interurban clever kickers hollered wolf all summer because it didn't rain. When it did rain they got rheumatism.

* * *

The crops slowly harvested beneath the golden sun and the wheat burst into magnificent bread labels. The alfalfa was just the right shape for the gavel but and the tomatoes all had nice, red complexions like Paul Whiteman. It's funny how vegetables know when the government is on their side.

* * *

The barns are bursting with corn and rye. You've got to give three knocks on the barn door to get in.

* * *

If it hadn't been for that administration subsidy the farmers would have had their usual bankroll of autumn leaves.

* * *

Now, everything is pretty as babies in an Asbury Park parade. So, President Hoover's four speeches will be cheered to a white blister. It's easy enough to be happy when everything goes like a song, but the man worth while is the man who can smile when Andy Mellon gets writer's cramp.

* * *

We have so much faith in this administration that we won't even read the Ten Commandments because they're not written on White House stationery. It's in pretty good shape, considering it ain't much more than a sparring partner.

* * *

Prosperity is just around the corner. But the traffic won't let you make that good old left turn.

* * *

We're coming around slowly like a yes-man with a stiff neck.

* * *

Everything looks as natural as eggs for breakfast. And is as comfortable as a horse collar on a mule.

* * *

The Republicans captured the country in 1920 and everybody knows an elephant eats more hay than a donkey. We have run the scale from extravagance to economy, but we will be all right if the next generation takes our oft repeated advice and saves its bribes

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

Determining Sex of Unborn Child

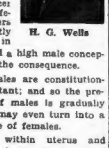
WE MAY guess from the statistics that for every six male producers only five femal producers get to the top of the ovidu ct; that six out of every eleven among the millions that lose themselves and perish on the way are femals producers.

The machinery of chromosome-distribution inevitably produces a precise quality of male producers and female producers. The female producers are apparently handicapped in some way and a high male conception ratio is the consequence.



H. G. Wells

But the males are constitutionally less resistant; and so the preponderance of males is gradually reduced and may even turn into a preponderance of females.

Conditions within uterus and oviduct may change the handicap on the female producers, and so alter the sex-ratio at conception. Favorable conditions before and after birth will prevent the percentage of males declining so rapidly.

At present in England at least one out of every five fertilized eggs dies before birth; over 3 per cent more die at birth; yet another 15 per cent or so in the first year of life—a wastage of nearly 40 per cent of all conceptions before one year old.

And of these deaths, many more are of males than of females. Thus, increase of prenatal care and infant hygiene would soon reduce the surplus of women over men.

SEC. 3. CONTROL OF SEX

Now we may discuss the bearing of these facts on a much debated question. Is there at present any way of deciding what sex our children are going to be?

Various methods are buzzed from ear to ear, and delicate issues of time and attitude are discussed. None of them seem to have the slightest practical value.

The sex of our children is at present a matter of chance; half of the millions of spermatozoa which are injected at any sexual act are male producers, and half are female producers, and the sex of the child depends on which kind happens to meet the egg first.

It has been suggested that the diet of the pregnant mother can affect the sex of her child, a copious diet for a girl and a lean diet for a boy, and even today educated people are trying to realize their wishes in this way.

There may be something in this idea, as our later discussion of intersexes will show, but there is probably not enough for any perceptible result, and if any were produced it would be much more likely to be an abnormality than for the diet to carry things off in the face of the gene-determination.

There seems to be a confusion here with the effect of external conditions on the sex ratio that was discussed in the last section. But it should be obvious that there is really no parallel between the action of external conditions on the relative mortality of the sexes and the action of diet on a single embryo.

* * *

At present, it must be admitted, we have no practical choice between girls and boys; we have to take what comes, with the odds about fifty-fifty. But this may not always be true. Some day we shall probably work out a real method of control. Perhaps it will be along the lines of the following curious suggestions.

The head of a spermatozoon, as we have already noted, consists of little else than condensed and closely packed chromosomes.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 — I'll wager two sticks of colored chalk and a spinning top all the way across the board that in these days of unemployment no person has been offered so many jobs they cannot fill as this red-eyed chronicler. Maybe it's kidding, but they are driving me nuts.

There are ten offers for radio broadcasting, two for "personal appearances" in what are known as talkie shorts, a trip to Hollywood to write a full length movie and even an offer for "a week at the Palace," that paradise of piffawsers. And each offer is baited with goodly gobs of lovely jack.

Were I to cash in on all I could fulfil that recurrent dream of lazing to the South Seas — pausing at Philadelphia for a sneering chuckle at the mint — and lie limp in the eerie glow of crackling koa logs, listen to the throb of gourd drums, the chant of dusky ladies. O, boy!

As it is all I can do is look silly while my wife pops in every once in awhile, trying desperately to keep a straight face, looks me over and murmurs: "Yes, doctor?" and rushes out in a wild gale of uproarious laughter. You'd think I haven't all my marbles or something.

I am conscious no histrionic virtues of mine incite such ridiculous offers. They are due entirely to the magic of the printed word. After people see a name in print a few years there is a natural curiosity—an inclination to wonder "What in the world does that bird look like?"

In other words, a column clown in the flesh has the same sort of appeal as a freak show's three-legged calf. And after folk see him, they merely sigh a sad little sigh and kiss another illusion goodbye.

I have had my flings at public speaking—three to be precise. After nights of wakefulness interpolated with a few Sahara poses—full face and profile—before the mirror, I imagined myself all set for a forensic fureur. Instead, when called upon my knees turned suddenly to loose jelly, my expression became that of a frightened hootowl, my voice retired far into a despairingly, thin squeak—like a rusted hinge on an old gate.

Once I was called upon for a few words at a stirring home-coming reception of Jack Dempsey in Los Angeles. Several noted Pacific coast orators glibly rolled out their masterful perorations. When I stood up, the world seemed to stop, turn over and leave everything a smudge. My mouth opened like a ventriloquist's dummy but there was no sound. I could not utter a word. As I sat down in confusion, a palooka near the speaker's table cried: "That's telling 'em, old whistle ears!"

And imagine me with my quarter of three o'clock walk following such deft delineators of extemporaneous and pin-next repartee as Phil Baker, Frank Fay and Julius Tannen at the Palace! There I would be all alone on that big stage with not even my wife to chafe my wrists and bring me out of a swoon. The Palace — your Aunt Ida's tippet. I know my eggs.

Upon another memorable — to me, anyway — occasion, I was called upon suddenly at a theatrical benefit, along with many others, to take a bow. How I managed to walk up the runway to the stage you'll never now. Or likely care. I mumbled something that could not possibly have been heard by the orchestra leader and started across the Sahara desert for the wings. It was the longest distance between two points I have ever known. I seemed to be on one of those running boards used to exercise dogs. I passed through row after row of villages — I distinctly remember Passaic — and was yanked back to reality by a stage hand as I was trying to climb down into one of the stage boxes. I was a week getting hold of myself again and sometimes I think I have never been exactly right since.

Only one writer of my acquaintance is able to face an audience in a theatre and with the polish of a hardened trouper "run away with the show." His name is Irvin Shrewsbury Cobb, Paducah's No. 1 boy.

There is no grin so goofy as that of a baffled speaker. Nor any expression so goofy. Heaven knows, I need the money—(Trio of bankers in deep bass: Yes and you better get it!)—but if I have to continue to make a fool of myself for a living, I'll do it in print, hewing to the line and letting blisses fall where they may.
